LOCAL PARNAISS ON WHEELS
IS PROJECT OF THE COLLEGE

ASSISTED BY W. P. A.

A library on wheels which, when completed, will travel up and down the roads of Lowndes County, has been set in motion by the students of the Georgia State Woman's College. In order that good books and magazines may find their way into the homes of persons who in the past have not had the use of any public library, the students of the college are organizing a miniature library, complete in itself, which will circulate over the county. This travelling library will not stay on the paved roads, but will take the small dirt roads that lead to the smaller communities where new books and current periodicals do not often find their way.

The college is entirely dependent on gifts to build up the collection. It is planned to include not only the classics but modern novels, with a few current best sellers. Periodicals varying in type from the American Boy to the Virginia Worcester Journal to the Readers Digest, will be provided for different tastes and ages.

An earnest appeal is made to the students to support the plan. Anyone having books or magazines which they are willing to contribute is asked to notify the college and a representative will be sent to collect them. An especial appeal is being made for children's books and for old magazines which may be clipped for serial stories.

The work involved in collecting the books, putting them in proper condition, is being done by the students and faculty of the college.

TWILIGHT SERVICE HELD IN NEW AMPHITHEATRE

At twilight Sunday evening a worship service was held in the Amphitheatre. The "Legend of the Twilight Bells," a reading, was given by Theresa Graham, of Jesup. During this reading Ruth Loebhridge, of Blackshear, played softly on the violin. Catherine Wilson, of Waycross, then spoke on "The Tree That Grows of Itself." She related how William H. Jackson bought the ground on which the college was built and bequeathed it to be protected. She correlated this with her own religious teachings which were burned at the stake in the Arkansas free-masonry of William Tyndall. The first complete translation of the Bible into English was made by Tyndall, who, for his religious teachings was burned at the stake October 6, 1536. Dean Stubb's emphasis that the fact that college students should become familiar with the Bible Albert Truax, Walter S. Brey, and their daily lives. He brought his inspired talk to conclusion by saying:

"Only by reflection on truths can America be saved from borrowings which Spain and other European nations are enduring. Learn truth and make America free."

FORMER EDITOR OF CANOPY BECOMES COLUMNIST

Leonora DuFour, who last year was graduated from this college, is now writing a column for the Cincinnati Daily News. The column will be submitted regularly to the college weekly paper edited by the students of the college, and will be given a by-line.

Miss DuFour was a literary editor of the Pine Cone, Editor of The Pine Branch, and for two years editor of The Canopy, wrote an article in a letter to Miss Gilmer, "Now I am doing what I always wanted to do—you know it was always my wish to come home and do a column on the River."

FORMER G. S. W. C. STUDENT BECOMES DESIGNING WOMAN

Hats off to Sara Bingham! She is the young artist who is gaining fame for her creative and designing ability. Miss Bingham has designed and sold two dresses and a pair of culottes to Madame herself, a well-known fashion magazine.

The dresses will be known as "Sara Bingham" dresses. After the models have been manufactured, they will be sponsored by Regenstein's, Atlanta. Miss Bingham is sent the first of any of her creations that is manufactured.

Miss Bingham is a former student of G. S. W. C.; she studied art for several years under Miss Frances Ruth Carpenter. She was an active member of the Fine Arts Club.

Y. W. C. A. TO SEND DELEGATES TO ATLANTA

The first executive council meeting of the student association of Georgia in white colleges will be held in Atlanta October 17 and 18. Presidents and vice-presidents of the Y. W. C. A.'s and the Y. M. C. A.'s and all affiliated organizations throughout the state will be present.

The plans for this council grew out of the need for a strong Christian movement in Georgia and in America. Eloise Ogletree, of Savannah, president of the College Y. W. C. A., and Ethel Stallings, of Newman, vice-president, will attend the meeting.

Aerial pictures of the college have been taken lately. Aviator Floyd Stimson of Macon was the photographer. Small prints will soon be available for students at a nominal sum.

William Tyndall Is Subject at Chapel

DEAN STUBBS GIVES INTERESTING TALK WEDNESDAY

Dean Stubb's spoke at chapel Wednesday morning using as his subject The Influence of William Tyndall. The first complete translation of the Bible into English was made by Tyndall, who, for his religious teachings was burned at the stake October 6, 1536. Dean Stubb's emphasized the fact that college students should become familiar with the Bible Albert Truax, Walter S. Brey, and their daily lives. He brought his inspired talk to conclusion by saying:

"Only by reflection on truths can America be saved from borrowings which Spain and other European nations are enduring. Learn truth and make America free."

FACULTY HONORS STUDENT BODY WITH RECEPTION

The annual Faculty Reception was held in the Rotunda of Ashley Hall on Saturday evening, October 3, at eight o'clock. Faculty members were grouped according to departments; the guests were introduced by six seniors.

When all the guests had been greeted, dancing was enjoyed in the dining room. Among the young men dancing were: Messrs Walter Williams, Oscar Dalton, John Youmans, Norman Rackley, Bruce Raburn, Ed Ferrell, Goat McKinney, Bill Whitaker, Hartman Eagle, Harry Stump, Billy Jamieson, Vivienne Previte, Neal Scott, Harris Duke, Walter McDaniel, George Jennings, Charles Joiner, George Shelton, Aubrey Stump, Clement Green, Curtis Jackson, Bill Oliver, Lloyd Smith, James Corson, Johnny Oliver, Billy Lastinger, Skeet Tillman, J. C. Woodward, Jr., Billy Bloodworth, Hugh Kroel, Bill and Henry Tullis, of Valdosta; Clarence Glauser, Arthur Weather, McIntosh Burns, Charles Stephenson, Jimmy Bingham, and Johnny Stone, Walter Kelly, Ed Rogers, Jimmy (Continued on Page Four)

Judges Select Seventeen New Members of the Sock and Buskin Club

The judges select seventeen new members of the Sock and Buskin Club. The judges of the club have selected seventeen new members from a group of some fifty applicants. The new members were chosen by a board of judges who judged them by five requirements: (1) an original pantomime; (2) an interpretation of some part in a group of plays; (3) sight reading Shakespeare; (4) reading dialect; (5) interpretive walks.

Following is the list of pledges to whom bids are extended:

ELECTION OF PUBLICATIONS STAFF UNPROVIDED FOR

Did you give the revision of the handbook question a thought? It is rather being forced on us. Our philosophy concerning the issue of revision seems to have gone a step further than the Bunker Hill phrase to become "Fire when someone slips up behind you and pulls the trigger."

Today the nominations for the "Pine Cone" staff are being made—nominations for an election that should have been held last spring. Why was the election delayed? Because our handbook has no provision for it and no one else thought to take the initiative. Yet the editing of the Pine Cone is considered a rather important office. However, the honor is likely to fall to almost anyone, what with our present handbook and point system to guide the election. This year is being taken care of. What about next year? Surely there should be a section in the handbook to simplify and improve the elections for 1937-38 Annual Staff.

In line with the subject of publications is the question of a staff for the 1937-38 Campus Canopy. The paper is a recent addition to campus publications, has no provisions whatsoever in the handbook. We recommend a nominating board to be provided for the selection of two or more suggestions for the office of editor and that of business manager of the Campus Canopy. These nominations shall be voted on by the entire student body. The supporting staff is to be appointed by the editor from a group of qualified candidates. Let's revise the handbook.

Mr. E. Ormonde Hunter of Savannah has been selected to fill the position of the late Dr. S. H. Morgan of Guyton, of the first congregational district.

Support the Library on Wheels

"Parnassus on Wheels"—truly, and at our very own door. Lowndes County is going to have a library on wheels with all the romance of smiles over the exchange of a book some person has always wanted to read, but "just never could afford it."

It really is going to be an exciting game, a kind of pioneering. But like all games, it needs two sides. These two sides, unlike all other games, however, are going to work together, a reciprocity alliance for the development of a more highly appreciative reading public in this county.

The public is here—waitting to find or to be shown good reading material. Next comes the part of the students on this campus, as co-sponsors with the people of Valdosta, of furnishing the books, periodicals, and magazines to equip the traveling library.

What kind of books? Good novels, any current magazines of accepted standards. Perhaps you have some literature book you no longer need—or an outdated magazine. Do you throw them away? Imagine how happy you would be to have access to them if you had never seen them.

Let the student body drink its toast of happiness and success to the new library with contributions!

Two: Bread is the staff of life.

Cinema Cynic

By Priscilla Kelley

Of much interest to the entire student body is the announcement made by Mr. O'Neal, manager of the Ritz Theatre, that all college students, town girls and dormitory girls, will be given the opportunity of attending all matinees throughout the coming year at the cost of fifteen cents instead of the customary twenty cents. The college girls can show their appreciation for this generous act by supporting the local theatres.

The most startling news that ever came out of Hollywood is that the young player chosen to do Huckleberry Finn the toughest, dirtiest, don't give a damn boy in the annals of literature, is a thirteen year old girl.

From O. C. McIntyre: Few actors can fool around with indifference to audiences. Noel Coward accomplishes it to a degree. Louis Holtz at times has an irritating nonchalance. The Barrymores—Ethel and John—expressed a hoity-tooty. But Lionel, more unending, has endured longer and is far the most popular of the Royal Family. In the old Winter Garden days there was an outfit that seemed eager to please—Jolson, Florence Male, George Munro and Harry Fox. Yet among them was a performer with extreme difference. I refer to Melville Ellis.

It is like the ice tray of a fragile, each compartment containing a fresh man. Walk down the center with no darling, and I will tell you the story of each.

This man is so glutted up you can't see him well. He was a handsome buxomite with one of those tan roadsters I love so well. He wrecked me, but since he killed himself, I couldn't ever bawl him out about it.

This man was my dancing partner when I was at the Green Mirror. He was a scary Cuban. I adored to frighten him. I put a rattlesnake in his dressing room one night and the damned poisonous snake bit him. I shot this one myself. Through the left shoulder, you see. No one ever knew. Of course, they knew he was killed because he was a policeman, but they didn't know I did it. He was a discredit to the profession, and I am not sorry I did it. It was in self defense. But Johnny cried the goods on me, and finding them charged me with stealing. So I shot him.

This man wrote a song or two for me before he died. I seem to have such hard luck with my writers. The handsome ones can't make a song in this world, and I don't care for the others. But Johnny was handsome, too. He was killed in a fight one night. It entered his back and went down as far as that blue mark.

Darling, this gangster was a peach. He wasn't just a gangster; he was king of the East Side. I met him when he helped me out in a fight with another dancer about who would use the new number. He made her stay out of town, and I used the new dance. And was I a success! And sharing it with Max was good until the West Side arose one night and killed the dear man.

Some people said it was because we had fused, but we had made up, and I was cooking him a dinner and put some red and killed him had given me for the wharf rat instead of red pepper in that Spanish omelette.

This one has a broken leg and general smashed condition. He was the most romantic of them all. He and his horse fell when he was chasing me. It is a pity his horse fell on top of him. He is not entirely frozen over. I still think of him. He was my last you.

This last space is for you, my darling. Look back! The ice is melting! They are rising over the sides! They are still cold. The flop is there. One has slid away. The other one gone? One is still dangling! He has gone! Down the drain, leaving my whole heart space for you, darling. And if you die, they all seem to die, I will keep you warm in my heart until I die.
Students Poll Votes for Screen Cast of Margaret Mitchell's Book

From a recent tabulation, it is learned that G. S. T. C. at Statesboro proved the most popular summer school with the girls on this campus; the U. of Ga. was the next most favored. Other colleges attended were: G. S. C. W., Mercer University, University of Florida.

"One thing I enjoyed at Milldegeville," remarked Martha Johnson, a transfer to G. S. C. W., this year, "was the open air class in Social Science."

"Well, the thing I liked about the U. of Fla.," ventured Kitty Morgan, "was all the grand fraternity houses."

"I had a unique experience," laughed Catherine Wilson. "I went to the Univ. of Ga., and among other things, I registered for a course in speech. Imagine my surprise when the teacher proved to be Miss Sawyer of my own G. S. W. C. campus!"

"Speaking of teachers," remarked a U. of Fla. student, "I wish there were more to be found like one I had this summer. He taught economics, and his name was Dr. M. D. Anderson, but he was called "Moby Dick" by young and old. He always enjoyed a joke and often interrupted his own lectures to spill one off. He didn't hesitate to throw a piece of chalk at a member of class who seemed drowsily inclined, and he indulged at least once a day in a profuse, rhythmic flow of profanity. He was very quick tempered, and once threw a chair out the window. That was one class that never grew dull!"

"Well, the way they rolled their 'r's at Washington University was amusing to me," volunteered Margaret Cannon. "And they never grew tired of calling me "Gay!"

"I'm glad that most of the feminine summer school students were teachers and older people," grinned Mary Harr- graves. "It made the competition a wonderful time, but nobody has been found yet who wasn't glad to return to G. S. W. C., Valdosta."

Marie Joiner of Albany will spend the week-end as the guest of Carol Forrest.

Canopy to Add Eight New Reporters to Staff

Try-outs for reporters for the Campus Canopy are now being held. For the next three the following girls will be given regular assignments: to cover Esther Smith, Eileen Hyland, Mildred Wilson, Roselyn Woodall, Louise Bell, Evelyn Ogletree, Edna Ruth McCain, Ruth Whisonont, Pauline Brewster, Janet Mann, Jerry Butler, Frances Spurlin, Linda Wingate, Ora Kate Wisenbaker, Rosalind Taylor, Dorothy Rousseau, Branch Ellis, Irwin Smith, and Lotta Mayberry. At the end of that time eight girls will be chosen according to their talent, promptness, and ability. The Reporters will be announced at a dinner at the clubhouse for the entire staff.

Carolyn Whipple of Quitman spent the week-end with Carolyn Greene.

Churchwells Fall Sale Now in Full Swing

Fall Dresses
Regular $9.95 Stock

$7.83

Gorgeous New Fall Creations, in Black, Rust, Brown, Navy, Green 12 to 20 and Larger.

"Paris Fashion" Shoes
The Newest in Suedes
Kids, Combinations

$2.93

And

$3.93

College Girls' Styles
Colors, Black, Brown, Green, Blue, Grey — All to B.

Silk Hose
69¢ to $1.35

Churchwells
Dr. James Welch Patten Publishes New Book

"WOMEN OF CONFEDERACY" IS TITLE OF PUBLICATION

Dr. James Welch Patten, a former professor of history at this college, has gained national recognition through his latest book "Women of the Confederacy." Most new volumes concerning the War Between the States arouse very little interest in the average reader, the libraries already being filled with volumes of history on the conflict. However, Dr. Patten and Simkins' book had already aroused controversy even before its publication.

Mrs. Thomas J. Stark, Virginia State Historian of the U. D. C., wrote to the authors saying that the book could not receive the wholehearted endorsement of her organization unless the phrase "Civil War" was omitted. Historian Patten, entirely unmoved, wrote back: "It seems to me we have softened the contents of the book enough to satisfy the Daughters already. And besides it is not likely that they will read it... It gave Ralph Flanders' Slavery in Georgia a $1,000 prize and he used the term, Civil War, throughout."

Contention immediately broke out in Virginia over whether to term the conflict a mere rebellion or a civil war. The Nebranview commented on the quarrel.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." But few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

The Nebranview, the kindest of all foreign nations, commented on the quarrel: "Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

Contents immediately broke out in Virginia over whether to term the conflict a mere rebellion or a civil war. The Nebranview commented on the quarrel.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.

"Southerners, feeling that their cause was a just one, have always resented being called "rebels." Few realize that the conflict had not attained the dignity of a war and that the term Civil War was omitted. Historian Patton, Dr. James Welch Patten, who taught here in 1926-27, is now Professor of History in Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. He ten a book that has evaluated the part of the Confederate War.