Students Propose New Exam System

Faculty - Student Proctor System Is the Plan
Suggested by Pupils

Believing that responsibility for maintaining honesty on quizzes and examinations should fall jointly on the faculty and the students, a group of students have drawn up a proposal which they believe will be an improvement over the present system.

Double Check System

Instead of the complete faculty proctor system which was installed in 1934, the proposal is that both teachers and students co-operate in reporting academic dishonesty.

According to the plan, which is expected to be submitted to the faculty in the form of a letter, students who see evidence of cheating shall report it. The faculty members who report such cases will meet with the students and, if necessary, the students will be suspended until an investigation can be made.

Grades Will Be Assessed

Grades will be assigned compulsorily in the first term, and the second term will be elective. Students will be required to take one course in each of the first two terms. They will be allowed to take any courses they choose in the third term.

The plan is designed to create a system of accountability among students and teachers alike. It is hoped that this new system will help to reduce the incidence of academic dishonesty on campus.

Congress Wants Recovery Of U. S. Business

By KATHERINE MOORE

While U. S. citizens are asking each other "Will Roosevelt make a good third term president?", Mr. Roosevelt has his hands full with the special session of Congress now meeting.

Original indications were that the special session had to do with a furthering of New Deal reforms. But as the discussions progress, there seems a decided tendency to swing back to "re-election and prosperity".

Prominent visitors will make addresses on Friday and Saturday.

Celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of GSWC will be held on campus the week-end of January 14 and 15, 1938. The college was opened for the first time on January 2, 1914 but Christmas holidays interfere with holding the celebration on the exact date.

Prominent visitors representing various state institutions as well as some out of state, will be in Valdosta for this occasion. Among them are Chancellors B. V. Sanford, The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia, Miss Mary Woolley, President of Mt. Holyoke College; Dean C. Mildred Thompson of Vassar College and President R. H. Powell, dean of Coordinate College at Athens.

Dramatic Club To Give Xmas Play At Vesper

Directed by Miss Sawyer, members of the Soph and Butlin Club, many of whom are freshmen. The play is, at vesper, Sunday evening, December 12.

The play is very impressive and the setting is elaborate. The scene is made beautiful by a cathedral window, designed and produced by the art class.

Dr. Phelan has charge of the singing and the results obtained will add greatly to the beauty of the play.

Characters include members of the Soph and Butlin Club, many of whom are freshmen. The cast is as follows: Holger, Dorothy Tipton; Sue Griffin; Berthe, Maudelle Wilson; an old woman, Marjorie Howard; a rich man, Louise Berkman; a servant, Martha Sue Griffin; Bertie, Maudelle Wilson; That Student ... interest is running high in favor of the proposed faculty-student proctor system, is the opinion gathered by the editors concerning the much-discussed examination plan.

Ignored by a recent letter in The Campus Canopy, expressed dissatisfaction with the present system. Students and teachers have cooperated in working out a new method that we believe will prove effective.

NO "TATTLE TALENTING"
Reporting students under the new system would not be "tattle-talentizing." It was not suggested because of any rampant; nothing could be more untrue. It is also certain that the students do feel that they can cooperate with the teachers and student government in removing the few cases of cheating that the students know of and the faculty don't.

VERY FEW WILL KNOW ABOUT REPORTED ONES
One of the dangerous points, namely, that everyone will hear about a student's supposed cheating, will not be placed against one person's word can not be placed against another's. It takes a second girl's indictment for the accused student ever to face a trial. Any girl who is not guilty will be released the moment she reports her; vicious intent against a student would be eliminated by the fact that she must be reported by another girl.

STUDENTS INSIST ON INTEGRITY
Class opinion is definitely against the girl who slanders her work by taking advantage of her enemy's first offence, no one but the student committee and the teacher involved will hear about the affair.

Another point in favor of the system is that one girl's word can not be placed against another's. It takes a second girl's indictment for the accused student ever to face a trial. Any girl who is not guilty will be released the moment she reports her; vicious intent against a student would be eliminated by the fact that she must be reported by another girl.

Dear Editor
That the buffalo is fast disappearing from the western plains is a scientific fact; that interest in college debating for our campus has completely disappeared is an unavoidable factual condition. Intelligent controversy with other colleges and universities should turn the tables on this subject to youth of today. We believe that in college debating for our campus to exist, we must have a movement which will reawaken the reawakening of our student body.

Let there be the debate, and many more opportunities in our college life, for students to go out from the campus to see what lies beyond! And in so doing become Women of Today.

Sincerely,
A Reader.

Ginger Rogers' Leading Man Admits He Is Lucky Man
By Carolyn Greene
Ginger has a new beau to take the place of quite a heartbreak for the lucky male, who also admits it! William Corson, ginger heartbreaker, will oppose Miss Rogers in several segments as Menjou's obscure rival for Ginger's affections of the STAGE DOOR. "I'll be the envy of 10,000,000 masculine fans," Corson is reported to have said. The college girls' query: what about the female fans?

Private Glimpses
Other notes from Ginger's interesting life:
She plays ping-pong expertly. She is Scotch-Irish and was born in Independence, Missouri; has green eyes and blonde hair. Her pet peaves are people who drink coffee that isn't hot, and people who do not like spinach. She denigrates any holiday except Thanksgiving.

Another Astaire Picture
Don't give up hope as to your chances of seeing Ginger in tap-taps again — however much she seems to succeed on acting ability alone, according to her contract, she must do two musicals a year, one of which is to be with Mr. Astaire.

Firelight
In our loves like sudden bursts of paper flame. Do they flare brilliantly.
Lighting up all surroundings—warming with—bracing—throughout.
To fade away and die quickly—
And with a sigh of others at the passing?
Or, are our lives like the soft red-hot coals—
That burn slowly and steadily.
Comforting and reassuring when we are close.
And when it slowly fades away and dies
We hear a sob of bitter anguish at so sad a passage.
Yet it seems that our lives are infinitely
What we make them.
Do we want to die beloved—mourned sincerely, by a few
Or rather live brilliantly—known by all—loved by few
So that when our passing comes—
We are forgotten as the ashes chal of burning paper.
God grant us to choose the way
And to be what we would have us do
And live to do
What Thou hast decreed for us.

Thou Almighty guide our faltering steps
Along life's pathway
Help us—piteous mortals—to leave behind
Earth's broken remembrance.
That perhaps we have not lived in vain.

November Moon
The November evening is cool and crisp.
The smoke lazily floats from the nearby chimney.
Making a silhouette against the clear crystal moon,
Which hangs as if by some majestic power seemingly just above my reach.
The round clear heavenly spot enveloped by
A blue sky slightly tinted with pink,
Is an omen of the approaching winter.
The stillness of the cold air chills me
But the warmth of the moon.
For now it is clear and jewel yellow
As the twilight darkens into night,
Seems to give me energy anew.

My view is fastly being hidden—now it is gone
But always in my mind will linger
The perfect picture of that November moon,
As it turned from crystal white into a hazy yellow.

From An Uneasy Chair
—we've printed two letters recently about the debating question—so, far, we don't notice any retained torches though debating, pro and con. We've discussed around—the student-faculty proctor system will be the best and fairest exam system if students are really sincere about debating, and we think they are. It is so the teachers think they used to think when they thought—they figure it out—we're sleepy—and editors never think—oh, you've heard that one before!—whoever "borrowed" that Emory Wheel from the office will be shot at sunrise!—which reminds us of an article in that paper about another student—author was hardly able to write the story due to missing materials—paper, pens, dictionaries, etc.—the Thursday Thanksgiving holiday was some treat—and the paper got a scoop on exam schedules—despite the fact that Leonora Ivey has selected the Christmas Party and refused to talk, we're still hopeful she'll divulge the secret—distilled women in the field of education will be the principal Assembly speakers—and the celebration is something to look forward to—the loveliest college in the South—
Group Creates Appreciation Study Class

Showers their interest in current literature and artists, a group of freshmen have created in their own initiative, a voluntary appreciation club. The organization grew out of Mrs. John Odum's Humanities class. The girls found in trying to correlate contemporary happenings in the literary and artistic world with the humanities course that they did not have time for both. As a solution to the problem they asked Mrs. Odum to help them in their study of present-day artist, music, books, news events, and radio programs, sometime outside of the regular class period. Mrs. Odum acts as advisor although she lets the girls do all the planning for the program. At the present time the club has not named itself though plans have been made to choose a name at a later date. Officers are Frances Hug, president; Evelyn Brim, secretary-treasurer. The program committee consists of Mary Alice Brim, chairman, Frances and Hattie Sue McIntyre.

Membership is extended to all freshmen and the group meets each Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the administration building in room 104. In this room is a bulletin board containing items of interest, amongst them a list of worthwhile radio programs for each week and a notice of each Saturday's group discussion. The topic for this Saturday was the best short story for 1936, "The Devil and Daniel Webster," by Stephen Vincent Benet.

So far no definite program has been worked out but Mary Alice Brim, chairman, says: "I am very interested in the work and think that the freshmen will accomplish something really worthwhile with this club."

Dougherty Stars in Play At Emory Junior

G. W. C. and Emory Junior were well represented in the cast of "Adam and Eva," popular three-act comedy, which was given Friday evening by the Emory Junior College Dramatic Club. The three roles were played by Beverly Dougherty and Wilby McKee.

Miss Dougherty, sent fine talent to the portrayal of Eva King, the spoiled daughter of the wealthy James King. She was very effective in the parts given over to choosing a husband.

Wilby McKee made a convincing Adam Smith who takes an amused interest in the King household.

The villain of the play was John Youmans.

Dr. Elinor Brink, professor of sociology, was speaking at the Valdosta branch meeting of the American Association of University Women. The meeting was held December 2 at the House-in-the-Woods, home of Mrs. Harriett M. Bourne. Mrs. B. De Pre Lumpkin's and Dorothy W. Douglas' book, "Child Workers in America." Gulliver Speaks At this week's meeting of the Valdosta Nature Society, Harold Gulliver, professor of English, gave a talk to the members of the group. "Miss Valdosta" Eleanor and Dorothy Morgan left Friday, December 3, for Miami and Cuba. Eleanor, elected "Miss Valdosta" in a recent contest sponsored by the Cuban Tourist Commission. She is a contracted centenarian and has studied under Miss Clara Bancroft and Mr. James Dasher.

Athletic Notice November sixteenth is the date by which all athletic practices numbering twenty-one for the quarter must be done. Only self-study to do themselves. One makeup practice can be counted in a day.

All tournament engagements must be played by this date, November sixteenth, also.

Lambdas and Kappas split honors Thursday, with the Lambdas winning the basketball game by a small majority, and the Kappas being victorious in the baseball game. The Lambdas won seven and the Kappas five.

At the conclusion of these games the Lambdas were twenty points ahead of the Kappas. At the end of the season the association with the greatest number of points will have its name engraved upon a tumbler given out by the Student Body Association.

The games Thursday are the last this quarter's activities. Social Science Groups Organized Members of Miss Mildred Peterson's Social Science classes have divided into study groups to prepare for the coming inevitable event — finals exams. These students are in six groups and in each group with an average of six students in each group. The groups will meet several times this week, and have divided the review material among their members. They feel that in this manner their review will be efficient, and they will have less self-study to do themselves.

Profs... Continued from Page One answer that might be gratifying to college students. She said, "There's nothing I can do as much as to think. It is characteristic of everyone, not just students. Not knowing what to think is human nature. Thinking requires a situation. Perhaps there is a lack of situations that we can be given thought for the college student." At Emory Junior College, Dr. Galtwood Workman, professor of psychology and Bible, said, "Five percent of college students think for themselves, ten percent take what is given them, and eighty-five percent of the students vary from getting nothing to getting almost what is given them.

Dean A. H. Edens, also of Emory Junior College, answered the question: "College faculties think what they think; I would say too that they think on their own. No longer do they hold the teacher in awe; no longer do they sit and swallow entire courses without a question. The change comes when they realize the fact that they realize a fight is ahead if they are to gain in the world of tomorrow, and they begin to think now in college.

In direct contrast to that of Dean Edens' answer is that of Dr. Alice Nevin's, professor of biology. In part Dr. Nevin said, "Students come to college with the idea that they can be told to be done by the method of memorization. Creative thinking is very rare among college students. I think that it is the educational setup which is responsible for their lack of creative thinking."

Those who are becoming disturbed may take heart in the answer given by Dr. Harold Punke, professor of education. "Of course college students think, and think creatively. They don't think as much as they could, however. Perhaps one of the reasons why college professors say that they do not, lies in the fact that students do not think as the professors do."

As long as there is doubt as to the thinking done by college students and there does seem to be, perhaps it might behoove us to begin thinking.

Registration Advance registration for the winter quarter began November 3 and was completed December 4.

Freshmen reported to Dr. Lena Hawks, upper classmen to Mrs. William Thomas. Several class periods were repeated but no curriculum change was reported. Early registration simplifies registration problems for students, but staff should be made to think of the students who have studied under Miss Clara Bancroft and Mr. James Dasher.

The proposal seems one that is favored by a large number of students. Perhaps it might make their ultra-modern product more attractive.

Second offense But, if the student is reported later by another girl, the entire Student-Faculty Council will be called in, evidence from both cases will be heard and a trial will be held. If found guilty, she will be asked to withdraw from school.

The proposal seems one that will eliminate any cheating that may have gone on under the teacher proctor system and is favored by a large number of students, who really believe that integrity is desirable.

GCPA Praises New Canopy The following notice is quoted from the November bulletin of the 1937-38 Georgia Collegiate Press Association:

"Modernistic journalism has invaded South Georgia with no prejudice for other forms of journalism."

"On October 17, Editor Rosalind Lane of THE CAMPUS, G. S. W. C., returned from ACP's national convention in Chicago with her head throbbing with ideas.

"Six days later, an up-to-the-minute, streamlined CAMPUS CANOPY made its first appearance. Column rules were abolished. Flush to the left went all heads. Editorials were set rocket style, with the title serving as the first word of the subject matter. Editor Lane added life by using alternating bold and light face type on feature material, experimented with boxes as attention-focusing devices.

"The result is pleasing. The student body at the Valdosta institution enthusiastically received the sophisticated newcomer. THE CAMPUS CANOPY thus becomes the first college publication in Georgia to take up streamlining. With additional experience from the first week, the staff should be able to make their ultra-modern product even more attractive."

Mussolini is certainly making his contribution.

G-Men Requirements Of all the little boys who diligently read Dan Dunn only a small percentage will attain their ambition of being "G-Men" when they grow up. It is more difficult than obtaining an appointment to Annapolis or West Point.

First of all, the applicant must be between the ages of fifteen and twenty years, and have a reputation for straight thinking, and no criminal record. At that age, it is practically impossible to go through a college program and have a reputation for honesty and straight thinking. Second, the candidate must be of college age. Third, the candidate must be身体健康, with no physical defects. Fourth, the applicant must be a graduate of a reputable high school, and has studied under Miss Clara Bancroft and Mr. James Dasher.
