Campus Officers Plan Retreat at Twin Lakes

The annual Retreat of G. S. W. C.'s leading student officers is scheduled for next week-end, May 21-23.

The members of the Student Council, the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, and the Sports Council will spend three days at Twin Lakes making plans for the coming year.

The group will leave on Friday afternoon and return Sunday afternoon. The members of the Student Council and the "Y" Cabinet will stay at the Frank Southwell's cottage, while the members of the Sports Council will reside at the Charles Reade's cottage.

Miss Carolyn Mathis, president of SGA, Miss Doris Bateman, president of the YWCA, and Miss Morris Smith, president of the Sports Club, with the help of their various committee chairmen, have directed plans for the weekend.

The girls will prepare some of their meals at the cottages and eat their other meals at Van's. Swimming, boating and hiking will prove diversions for the girls between meetings.

The three organizations will hold individual meetings on Friday and Saturday, and will hold a joint meeting on Saturday night. At these meetings they will discuss plans and improvements for campus activities, suggested changes in rules and regulations, and will make specific arrangements for Freshman Week next fall.

Chaperoning the Sports Council will be Miss Leonora Ivey and Mrs. Harris Mathis. The Student Council and "Y" Cabinet will have Mrs. Charlotte Amason and Miss Alice Meadors as chaperones.

The group will travel there and back in chartered buses.

Rotary Club To Honor Seniors

The graduating classes of G. S. W. C., Emory Junior, and Valdosta High School will be entertained by the Valdosta Rotary Club at a picnic on May 28. An annual affair, the picnic will be held at Twin Lakes from 4:00 P. M. until 9:00 P. M.

The members of the Rotary Club and their families will be hosts to the group for an afternoon of fun, which will include boating, swimming, and dancing.

Following the afternoon's recreation will be an old fashioned picnic supper. After supper the students will entertain their hosts with a varied program of songs, dances and stunts.

'W. C. STUDENTS FAVOR STASSEN FOR NEXT PRESIDENT OF U. S.

By ANN DUPRIEST

Georgia's Senator Walter F. George received five write-in votes. One write-in vote was cast for GSWC's Dr. Harold S. Gulliver.

"Democratic" was circled as the party preference on eighty-six per

After "Democratic" were written "always," "usually," and "but voting Republican." "In 1948 election only" followed one of the Republican preference votes. One person thought, in regard to parties, that "a mixed one would be better this year."

Staff Distributes 1948 'Pine Cones'

Thursday was V-Day for the 1948 "Pine Cone" staff! The arrival of GSWC's yearbook was hailed with cheers from the students and sighs of relief from the staff members.

Announcing on the first two pages of the annual that they have a "story to tell—a sort of merry-go-round—of 1948 at the Georgia State Womans College," the staff, aided by Polly Pine Cone, reviews the year's activities. The students, faculty, the organizations, and events are recorded in pictures and prose by Co-Editors, Miss Beey Keene and Mrs. Carolyn Christian, and Business Manager, Miss Rebecca Jennings.

The 1948 Pine Cone is dedicated to Dr. Marian Farbar, college physician, "who so kindly, graciously, and unselfishly takes care of our health."

The books are attractively bound in black leather, with the initial letters of the title, located in the lower right hand corner, in white.

Students who have paid their Activities Fee for three quarters this year may obtain their copy of the "Pine Cone" in the Student Bookstore.

Ten Years Ago In The Canopy

By BOBBY LEE

In the Canopy of 1935 everyone was talking about the Senior Dance. Poor little freshmen seemed to have a hard time of it, so they expressed their feelings poetically. Here 'tis:

A Freshman-Junior Plaint
Tonight my little theme song
Is: "I Never Had a Chance."
Why is it that I have to know
This is a Senior Dance?

I'm tired of hearing all the "musts"
And tired as well of "can'ts"

I'm tired of hearing at every turn
"This is a Senior Dance."

All day I've heard the raving
"uppers"
And heard the Sophomore rants
All day I've heard the horrid words
"This is a Senior Dance."

I wonder if my trick would work?
If I should wear boy's pants
And walk on down, would I still hear
"This is a Senior Dance?"

With deep anguish, he begged her to reconsider her answer.
"If you don't marry me, I'll blow my brains out."
"Oh, would you really? That would be a great joke on father, for he thinks you haven't any."

Then there was the girl who married the X-Ray specialist because nobody else could ever see anything in her.

At four o'clock in the morning the farmer hammered on the door of the green farm hand.

"Come on, get up, we're going to cut oats."

"Are they wild oats?" asked the farm hand.

"No."

"Then why do you have to sneak up on them in the dark?"

Hungry customer (standing at lunch counter): "One roast beef sandwich."

Polite waiter: "Will you eat it here or take it with you?"

Customer: "I hope to do both."

"The nerve of that guy offering me only ten a week to start," sneered the young applicant for a job. "Who does he think I am? A college graduate?"

And of course everyone has heard "I'm Only A Confederate Soldier But I Wear A Union Suit."

Plumber: "I've come to fix the the old tub in the kitchen."

Son: Ma, here's the doctor to see the cook.

It was a moonlight night,
She was a marble statue,
He was a little tight.

Letter To The Editor

May 10, 1948

Editor, "Campus Canopy"

GSWC

Valdosta, Ga.

Dear Madame Editor:

Everyone knows and understands through experience that men are superior to women in EVERYTHING, from baby sitting (depending upon the age) to goat farming!! This is especially true in the natural sciences. The fact that the biology students at GSWC won the heredity contest is disheartening, discouraging, and disillusioning. The percentages do not show the real picture. Therefore, in this letter I wish to expose Mr. Brown and his antiquated methods of teaching.

1. He spends more time at GSWC than at Emory. However, we cannot blame him altogether for this. We would too if we could. But that only goes to show that he is not interested in us.

2. And even when he is here, he comes to class 14½ minutes late (we could leave after 15 minutes), relates his risqué Navy experiences, and dismisses the class 10 minutes early.

3. We have great cause to accuse him of partiality. When we ask him to explain a question on a test, he says invariably, "Who's taking this test, you or me?" In a last minute attempt to pass this course, most of the boys have begun wearing sweaters and skirts to classes.

4. The only contact we have with Mr. Brown is through his choice clique or "spittoon circle" of boys who grade all the quizzes. These chosen few are hounded day and night by conscientious young biologists.

5. In some respects Mr. Brown gives a well-rounded course at Emory. What we don't have in lab or lecture, we are sure to get on the test.

So, you see, Madame Editor, that you girls are gloating only over an empty victory. We men still are superior. We are only victims of circumstances in this case. And if you still don't believe it, we are willing to meet you at any time at your convenience with Bunsen Burners and dissecting kits.

Disgustedly,

THAMES

Auf Wiedersehen

I remember reading a story of a little girl named Joy several years ago, one that impressed me very much. Joy was having a "mood" probably much as we do. Her mother asked her to run and errand for her and Joy began to fuss and pout and her mother said, "Joy, you aren't spelling your name right." Joy immediately became interested because she knew she was spelling her name as she had always spelled it. But her mother insisted that she was not spelling it right. She had been spelling it yoJ because J stood for Jesus, O for others, and Y for yourself and Joy had it reversed. It was only when she turned the letters around in her behavior that she could spell it right.

All of us have Joy for a middle name. Of course it is not on our birth certificates or driver's license but nevertheless it is ours. Just as we would not want to call ourselves yraM we would not want to call ourselves yoJ.

Jesus should come first. He came to point the way for us and to give us a pattern to follow. Only when we put Him first do we realize His guidance. If we follow His lead we will walk in the true path of putting others first.

We are always hearing about loving others and we agree heartily that we do love everybody. It is easy to make a broad statement like that but if you do not prove your love, how will everybody know of it? We have always been told that it is the little things that count—patience, cheerfulness, sympathy, helpfulness. All these make up the big thing called Love.

After Jesus and Others, come Yourself. You are last but not to be lost in the crowd. The person with interests outward and inward will not have time for herself.

Joy is a beautiful name. It is your name and mine but it is beautiful only as long as it is spelled Joy and not yoJ.

YANCEY

How Do You Spell Joy?

Until this year, I have felt a bit scornful of the Seniors who wept at graduation and on later week-ends eagerly grasped for news of their classmates. Now I am beginning to feel a kindred emotion. One cannot live in a place for four years without becoming attached to the very buildings. Or know one's friend's innermost thoughts without feeling torn apart at separation. So commencement will be a sad, nostalgic occasion.

On June 9 there should be not only a commencement but also an accounting for the achievements and accomplishments. There is much to be said for the added self-confidence and poise. And again for the ability to attack a problem outright, to cooperate with others in its solution. Then too, the background of knowledge on a range of topics, which makes conversation fun, and serves as an impetus to gaining further information. These are all by-products of education, and will indirectly be more valuable than the knowledge of literature and math.

The word commencement should not be passed over lightly, but rather be a motto and reminder of the way ahead. For it is after graduation when we no longer have the college for protecting arms, that we need the true test of what we have learned. It is there we must hold fast to the social advantages we have learned; the untiring energy and interest in many activities, the ability to meet new situations. Having graduated, we "commence" on new ways, alone—but with a background of assurance and well-built confidence.

I have been asked what I have learned in these four years, and the answer is not easy. Aside from material things, I believe the most inclusive answer is "a perspective." Someone once described it in this way. You have often awakened on a dark night, and found yourself "turned around," furniture assumes strange shapes; nothing is understandable. Then when a light is shone, even a tiny one, immediately there is an order to the room and you no longer feel lost. This light I call perspective, and situations in our lives, the "turned about" room. The light of perspective, then, is our total learning from school, and it is the most important.

What's The Matter Can't 'Cha Read?

This week's Canopy Poll—and others conducted this year—have revealed more than the simple facts that students are for Stassen, and that Velma Crummey weighs 118 pounds. They have shown conclusive evidence that about fifty per cent of W. C.'s scholars can't follow directions.

For instance, instructions on the information blank, handed students at assembly this week, stated in simple ten cent words, "Circle One Name Only OR Write In Choice." Undaunted, the girls circled not one but two, or even three names. And then, just to show that there "heart was really in it," they wrote in a name to boot. Some, to make sure they would be understood, wrote in the same name that they circled.

The ability to read, understand, and follow directions should be a standard part of a college student's equipment. Certainly the lack of this talent leads to more serious complications than hard-to-compile-polls. Perhaps the defect could be remedied at the cost of a little more attention to details.

Anyone interested in seeing the polls referred to above will find them on display in the "Canopy" office—(Next week we'll tell you how many people came by 324 Senior Hall to see the exhibit.)

"Our Minds Oft Stray . . ."

With the arrival of club keys and pins, as is customary in any college during the spring of the year, one becomes aware that tangible evidence is the only evidence some of us have of ever belonging to a club or organization. To say that this is pathetic is an understatement. The purpose of organizations should show through their members to such a degree that everyone would be aware of the usefulness of each club here on campus.

It is true that some of our campus organizations are full of vigor and action, but it is also true that some of them do nothing. Organizations are our means for improving the campus and life around us. Many of us too often overlook this.

Allotments from the Student Activities Fund are made each quarter with all of the departmental clubs receiving equal allocations. For some clubs this allotment means a new rug for the Boys Club or a larger donation to the Red Cross or the W. S. S. F. To others it is just a sum to be divided three ways for refreshments.

All of the clubs state that their purpose is to "develop" their members, either physically, mentally, or culturally. In the planning that comes with the changeover of officers and members of each club, it might be well to keep in mind the purposes from which the clubs have been organized. atondb on—yc'u-

STATISTICS on STASSEN

GSWC students went on record this week as favoring Harold E. Stassen for President of the United States. Results of the campus wide poll, published elsewhere in this week's "Canopy," show that a majority of the students will vote for Stassen if he receives the Republican nomination.

Believing that readers will be interested in a few vital statistics concerning this Republican hopeful, the Canopy is offering the following information culled from recent periodicals.

Harold Edward Stassen was born forty-one years ago on a truck farm in West St. Paul, Minnesota. He attended St. Paul's Humboldt High School and the University of Minnesota, graduating from the law school there in 1929. The same year he married Esther Glewwe, his childhood sweetheart. Their two children, Glen and Kathleen, are 12 and 6.

A lawyer by profession, Stassen was elected Dakota County attorney in 1929 and re-elected in 1933, while in 1938 he was elected governor of Minnesota and was re-elected to this office in 1940 and 1942. Taking office as governor at 31, he was the youngest state governor in U. S. history.

Commissioned a lieutenant commander in the Navy in 1942 he was discharged in 1946 as a captain.

A big man, 6 ft. 3 in., 215 lbs., Harold Stassen is at home with all types of people. He enjoys hunting, playing chess, taking Glen fishing, going for long walks alone.

Stassen favors the Marshall Plan; a strong U. N.; the Taft-Hartley Act; strong labor unions; tax reduction and debt retirement; tax concessions for small business; Government controls on inventories; consumer credit, and commodity speculation; a one billion-a-year Government housing program; rent control; FEPC; a modified U. M. T.; parity price support; and admission of displaced persons. He is against the shipment of potential war material to Russia; price-control and rationing; and the proposed Missouri Valley Authority.

His admirers feel "that he is a natural leader who understands the problems and has drawn the support of labor, business, and agriculture; . . . a man who stands the best chance of luring the independent vote into the G. O. P. camp."

Bits from Books

By "BOOTS"

David Dodge has written another sort of travel diary entitled "How Lost Was My Weekend." Mr. Dodge, a native of San Francisco, moved his family (a wife, daughter, a dog of unidentifiable breed and two parakeets) to Guatemala City shortly after he got out of the Navy. He still likes Frisco, but for "Anyone who dreams of Caribbean seas, fiestas, snow-white beaches, bull fighting, and hilarious escapades among ancient Mayan ruins, David Dodge can tell you that it all comes true in Guatemala."

The bright sketches of Irn Koons' add a lot of fun to this book. And they are certainly competition for James Thurber's cartoons. Koons states that he worked on the sketches "in a warm cellar in Manhattan and a freezing flat in Brooklyn" so he doesn't know what effect the housing shortage will have on his art.

A new book by John Steinbeck that touches a subject we are all interested in is "A Russian Journal." This book is the result of a trip that Steinbeck and Robert Capa (photographer) took thru Russia "to find out what the 190,000,000 human beings in USSR were really like as people." They tried to limit their interest to an examination of how the people live, what they eat, how they spend their time, what they think and how they avoided political discussion and editorial comment.

They spend much of their time in the smaller villages talking to the factory workers, field peasants, and farmers.

Capa took an astonishing collection of photographs and from the four thousand he brought home to choose from, seventy are combined with this fascinating book.

PLAY DAY- MAY DAY PROVES INTERESTING—

The return of Play Day-May Day to GSWC was a great success. Many alumnae and visitors were on campus for the day and some for the weekend.

The games, swimming exhibition and riding feats in the morning, May Court in the afternoon, and the dance that night were the highlights of the festival.

STUDENTS ATTEND COLLEGE DANCES—

Jo Webb, Jean Tucker, Velma Crumme, Jackie Norton, and Gloria McQuaig were guests of friends at Emory University for the Dooley's Ball this past weekend.

Mariarr Collins visited Auburn, Alabama, for the Alpha Psi annual Moonlight Ball.

Freida Levin was in Gainesville, Florida, last weekend for a rush dance at the University.

LOVELY AND ENGAGED—

Hulda Jones, Maizie Sharman, and Geneva Ross have an addition on the third finger, left hand.

Maizie and Geneva are engaged to home town boys and Hulda to a Valdosta resident.

Ala McBride is at home this weekend attending the Junior Senior banquet at Brewton Parker Junior College.

Betty Henderson and Sammie Steedley seem to be boosters of the good-neighbor policy between Valdosta and Cuba

JUNIOR-SENIOR FROLICS—

It's a big weekend on campus for the Juniors and Seniors. There will be dancing, swimming, boat riding and picnicing to entice them out to the Lakes for their annual weekend of fun. Reports indicate that this weekend will be one of the best of its kind held by the Juniors for the Seniors.

FLASH!—

It is not generally known that the voice maestro, with the aid of pressure cookers of various sizes, is a cook of no mean ability! It is further reported that he was chef last summer at Lake Rabun, and how the girls did eat! All hungry girls are urged to join the Aubreys and their students at Lake Rabun this summer!

The soft-ball game one should not have missed was played not long ago between the upperclassmen of both the Kappa and Lambda teams. It was the last inning, the Lambdas stood out 8-7. The Kappas were in, had two outs, and Toler was batting. She had had two strikes and three balls. The bases were loaded. At last, here was the Kappa's chance at a winning. One more ball and a Kappa would walk in and at least tie the score. Then came the pitch, right past Toler's eyes! The suspense curtailed the sun. Then, in the face of a Kappa victory, the Umpire (Del Gado) shrieked into the air, "St-r-i-k-e three." Yes, the Umpire still lives, but with the ever-present feat of impending death. The score rested 7-8, another Lambda victory.

That same afternoon, the Kappa Freshmen victoried 12-4 over the Lambda Frosh. Someone has to keep the team on its feet.

The date for the "Aquacade" has been changed from Saturday, May 29, to Thursday of that week; thus enabling those students who wish to take the week-end at home to see the fine display of swimming and diving forms, and the presentation of the Plaque and team letters.

ARCHERY TOURNAMENT CORRECTION—

There is a correction to be made concerning the Archery Tournament, of which an announcement appeared in this column in the May Day issue. The Junior Columbia Round, to be used for the Tournament shooting, and a nationally known qualifying round, consists of twenty-four arrows at forty, thirty, and twenty yard targets. The Round was announced as consisting of thirty arrows at each target.

The tourney begins on Saturday morning at ten o'clock. There will be a qualified scorer in charge of the range every afternoon of the week, 15-22. The scorers are Miss Leonora Ivey, Cornelia Tuten, Betty Eford, Bette Alderman, and Boo Harrington. To shoot at times not specified on the tourney schedule which is posted in the gym, one may contact any of these four scorers.

ARCHER OF THE WEEK—

The archer of the week is Cornelia Tuten. Having begun to shoot just last quarter, she pleasantly surprised herself and the other archers with a score of 157 at forty yards, 140 at thirty yards, and 190 at twenty yards. Archery seems to be of budding popularity among the students as among the nation as a whole. It has been promised as a P. E. course for next year for those students who are unable to participate in the more strenuous sports.

INSTALLATION SERVICE—

The Installation service for the new Sports Club president and Council was held at the pool on Wednesday night at 7:30. As each student came into the enclosure she was given a "wish boat" with a candle inside. Ann Wilkin, outgoing president, gave her farewell address and expressed a hope that the Sports Club would continue to grow and to serve the students of GSWC. Morris Smith, the new president gave a brief talk.

After the addresses the spectators wrote wishes for the Sports Club on the bottoms of their wish boats. The Council members then lit all of the candles and the students set their wish boats afloat on the water, making a brilliant array of lights.

The wish boats were later gathered and the wishes read at the Council supper held in the House in the Woods following the service.

Lake Rabun Lures Aubreys, Students

Mr. and Mrs. Raunonde Aubrey will leave for Lake Rabun on June 10 to open their summer studio. Accompanied by their children, and a few students who will combine vacation and study, they plan to remain until September 15. At various times during the summer they will be joined by students from other parts of Georgia who will study Voice or take courses in Music Theory, Harmony, Counterpoint and Composition with Mr. Aubrey. Mrs. Aubrey will also take a few students of piano.

The studio is located on a beautiful mountainside above Lake Rabun, at Lakemont, in the mountains of North Georgia. With an elevation of about 2,500 feet, the climate is as pleasant as that of New England.

Mr. Aubrey stated that if the house is not filled with students, there may be accommodations for a few others who might wish to spend all or part of their vacations there. This would afford opportunity for an unusually inexpensive vacation, and Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey will be happy to extend this opportunity to any G. S. W. C. girls who may wish to come. Any girls who are interested are asked to contact Mr. Aubrey for information before the close of school, if possible; otherwise they may write him at Lakemont, Georgia.

Students May Select Rooms Now

Announcement from the Business office this week states that all students who wish to reserve a dormitory room for the 1948-49 school year are asked to pay the $5.00 room reservation fee to the business office and file application immediately. Applications will be available in the business office.

Room drawings in all dormitories will be held the latter part of next week. Only those persons who have paid the room reservation fee will be eligible to participate in the room drawings.

In these "drawings" each person who has paid her room reservation fee will draw a number. This number will place her in line for the choice of rooms. Sometimes misunderstood, this number that each person draws will not be the number of a room but merely will rank her in choice for a room. Thus, the person drawing "1" will have first choice of a room, the person drawing "2" will have second choice and so on, until everyone has drawn a number.

Notice of the drawings will be posted early next week.
