MISS MARTHA SIMPSON

SIMPSON TO REPRESENT G. S. W. C. AT GA. TECH'S ENGINEER'S DAY

Chosen By Vote of Students
At Assembly January 19

Miss Martha Simpson has been chosen to represent GSWC at Georgia Tech's annual "Engineer's Day." The "Day" is set tentatively for April 9, although April 23 has also been announced as a possible date. This cup will be awarded to the winning class of "SGA Week," the "Silent Soph," and Sarassate.

The program is divided into three sections. The first contains works of older composers such as Bach, Haydn, and Schumann. The second section includes several works of Chopin, Wagner, and the more modern Ravel and Stravinsky.

The works of more recent composers are included in the last section. Some of these are Debussy, Prokofiev, and Sarasate.

Cup Won By Sophs During SGA Week

On Wednesday, January 19, Miss Carolyn Mathis, President of GSWC, presented the SGA Cup to the winning class of "SGA Week," the "Silent Soph," and Sarassate. Miss Betty Buckner, President of the Seniors, accepted the cup for her class. (Picture on page three.)

The cup, won by the Sophomores, is a fifteen-inch silver cup sponsored by Tau Beta Pi, the engineer's version ofPhi Beta Kappa.

In connection with the annual ball, the Georgia Tech women will have an opportunity to select a beauty queen to represent GSWC at the reduced price of $1.50, may be purchased from any member of the GSWC Glee Club. PILGRIM'S INN—By Elizabeth Garber

PILGRIM'S INN is a very colorful book that will hold the interest of almost any reader.

Nadine Elliott left her husband during the war and tried to care of her five children, she found the going very difficult. She remarried after her divorce when she fell in love with her husband's handsome young brother. Her Grandmother Elliot finally succeeded in persuading her to leave her husband and George, her husband, everyone knew that was the end of the marriage.

David, Sally and George took over an old inn in the country and worked it over into a beautiful home where they raised their children and to the parents. There their two children, who were the pride of their home, they had her go her hold on David's life and saw this to the end of the story is brought to a very happy end.

The style of writing and the vivid imagination used in the descriptive paragraphs, clearly shows Miss Garber is an author to be remembered also for GREEN DOLPHIN STREET.

GIRD OF FORTUNE—By Harriett Rice

This novel, based on the life of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, is another addition to the many successes of the picturesque plantation life of Southern writer. He has become known to the world as NEW ORLEANS WOMAN and LOUISIANA HAYRIDE.

No matter what the weather, Garber tells the life of Varina Howell and Jeff Davis, his first love, and of his wife, Southern lady. His life was...
All In Time

By Jinx Smith

Life is supposed to be fair. If you don't believe me, just ask Jinx Why, only this morning we were discussing the hectic world of the world and things in general, and someone made the comment from the art of making coffee to this: "Why do they stop me where I live? Reason: insufficient probable cause."

Problems and more problems! Why, a body can't even get decent sleep at night now-a-days without worrying about whether they will have pleasant dreams — whether they'll dream of the alarm going off in the morning, or even the fact that they might not see the next day. Just little irritating things like that that make this life-versus-problem merry-go-round.

And it is one big ride around the circle. Believe it or not, I may not know about the next big date, last year's nemesis, today's lottery ticket... well, take something like this. Nothing personal, you understand. Just a little talk 'twixt me and Jinx. We probably should study English this period... after all, I haven't been doing much work on it there, so much material... and we couldn't afford a dictionary... I haven't bought one since it's just a large class, probably will not be called on it in the present exam, and since it's such a large class, I probably will not be called on it in the present exam, and since it's such a large class, I probably will not be called on it in the present exam... I mean, I've got to do it in ink! Well, you can hardly translate it literally... What does this word mean? I'm getting better. I don't... I'll re-try....

There's one thing that makes me feel hungry even when I'm supposed to be full! The task of keeping me supplied with food has been quite a strain on my mother. All day long she slaves away in the kitchen, creating delicacies that I would love to try. "What's for dinner?" I ask, only to be met with a look of despair and the answer, "Just eat what's on the table!"

I felt much better after having a light snack of cheese and crackers. I didn't think I could do so many times of the day, but I was on the verge of a physical collapse. Then some-where, I'm not sure... I need help to me stagger back to the room.

I guess some strain to be so utterly futile. Ten minutes after eating, I find myself rummaging in the bread box for something else. Some doctors are of the opinion that people eat too much anyway. Then they're so tired that they don't have time, or energy, or money, to clean up the word. It is said that the average American family spends $25.00 per week on food, or 10% of their income. In that case, I've dogged one foot on the table already.

One of the main troubles with eating to all of the time is the interruption caused by classes. If I didn't have to attend so many classes, I might have time to eat enough. I considered taking a small lunch to my classes with me, but my roommate informed me that this would be considered offensive by my classmates.

The most trying time of the day, I find, is my golf class. It comes just before dinner, and needless to say, I am always famished by that time. I suppose it's a good thing that I'm very interested in golf, because I usually get so engrossed in my game that I don't realise how hungry I am until I find myself leaning weakly on the club and my opponent far ahead of me. After I reach a certain part of the game, I find it necessary to put the remainder of the way, regard- less of the weather, to play on. I would like to say that I have solved the problem for you. I probably will not be asked on that, turn your back on it.

I considered, then, the matter closed... summed up in a few simple words. You see, it is the concentration of the last period that I'm going to work on. And I'm going to try and think of solutions... I just remembered... that I have never been at a loss for anything... and with all this precious time gone! Well, I'll just steal a note from Betty O'Hara to end this and hope... "Tomorrow's another day?"

(Continued from Page One) of the University System he pointed out its loss of veteran students and the $1,000,000 necessary for repairs on the eighteen units of the system.

A note of hilarity was added to the generally sad atmosphere when, after receiving a glass of water to relieve a cough, Dr. Caldwell said, with a smile that was quite forced, "I hope I don't have to quit drinking." There was general laughter.

Golf Tournament
Will it be happening—nope! Golf tournaments, that is. They tell me that they are playing a “match” the way it is. Yes, all the people who are playing are in groups of four, and they are trying to find the Plaque and the Tallahassee Trip.

First Match Games of the Quarter
First Match Games of the Quarter are over for the Lambda and Kappas. The Lambda and Kappas are playing the same game. The Lambda began the quarter by battling a tough kappa basketball team to a 2-0 victory for the Lambdas.

First Match Games of the Quarter
The first three games of the quarter got off to a good start with the Lambda and Kappas scoring the winning points. The Lambda and Kappas scored in the second quarter. The Lambda scored nine of the ten points. With her excellent spotlight as “Star of the Basketball,” she has the Lambda scoring more than ten points. Winnie McDonald, Lambda, and McDonald follow.

First Match Games of the Quarter
The Lambda and Kappas ended with no score. Polly Mann, of the Reds, made the first score in the second quarter by a surprise attack on Goalie Griffin. Excellent passing in the second quarter to climax the first score was executed by the Kappas.

First Match Games of the Quarter
Third quarter found Bet Alderman doing some intricate passing and quick foot-work as she scored again in the game to bring the score to 4-0 in favor of the Reds.

Seniors Work Hard To Raise Money
The Senior Class, working to raise enough money to pay expenses on a class trip, has been selling candy in all the dormitories on Friday nights. Tonight, they also will sell candy during intermission time at the performance of Hamlet.

First Match Games of the Quarter
Anticipating the trip, possibly to New Orleans, the class is planning a minstrel, a beauty show, and a skit night.
