One of the most important events of the year awaits Valdosta when tonight at 8:00 the famous Barter Theatre of Virginia will present its entirely new production of Shakespeare's immortal "Hamlet" in the auditorium of the Georgia State Woman's College.

This appearance in Valdosta by the Barter Theatre should not be confused with its later scheduled performance of "Hasty Heart" on February 15, the third presentation of the Valdosta Concert Association.

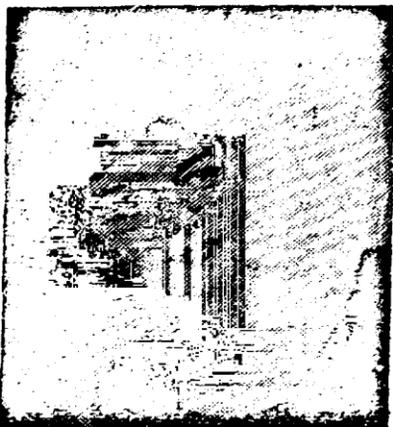

Directing "Hamlet" and appearing in the title role is a young man who has himself become one of the most important people in the world of the theatre—Robert Breen, the executive secretary of the American National Theatre and Academy in New York. But his talent is by no means administrative alone. Mr. Breen was first and still is an exceptional actor and director. John Barrymore, in his own modest way, called him "the greatest Hamlet next to Barrymore." In 1943, Mr. Breen directed and played in the version of the classic that was seen by tens of thousands of service men—"G. I. Hamlet," which toured the nation's training camps. Other members of the cast include the cream of the Barter Theatre's acting company, which last year toured twenty-two states and has played to almost half a million people in two seasons on the road.

In this production, "Hamlet" has been approached as if it were a "new play," never before produced. The entire production, direction, action, costuming, lighting, has undergone skillful interpretation for modern audiences.

For example, the opening curtain rises not on a gloomy watch on the ramparts for the ghost of Hamlet's murdered father—but on a gay and riotous party in which the new king, Claudius, and Hamlet's mother participate. The idea is of course, to show immediately the decadence of the Danish court under the murderous new king and therefore to point up more clearly and at once the fury of Hamlet and the bitterness with which he plots the revenge of his father's recent death.

With production and lighting under the direction of Nat Karson, of Radio City Musical Hall fame, and with special music composed by Arthur Kreutz and recorded for the performance, the Barter Theatre's "Hamlet" promises to be one of the most brilliant theatrical successes of many a season anywhere.

MISS JERRY JEDD, who will appear as Ophelia, in the Barter Theatre production of "Hamlet."

Booked for a tour of twelve states, "Hamlet" is brought to Valdosta under the sponsorship of the S. G. A. and Senior Class of GSWC. Tickets, at $1.80 and $1.20, may be purchased from any member of the Senior Class or from Mathis and Youmans Music Co. in town.

FOUR G. S. W. C. STUDENTS ATTEND MINIMUM FOUNDATION MEETING

Four students, Miss Carolyn Mathis, Miss Charlene Bowen, Miss Cornelia Tuten, and Miss Mary Owen, with Dr. Ralph Thaxton, represented GSWC at the public hearings of the House of Representatives and Board of Regents Monday on the $10,000,000 requested by the University System as a part of the Minimum Foundation Program.

At the hearing of the Board of Regents Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, Chancellor of the University System, presented the facts in behalf of the requested appropriation. Dr. Caldwell said that the University System is now operating under an annual allotment of $5,178,000 and that the Minimum Foundation Program provides only for an increase of $4,822,000.

In reference to the $2,322,000 requested for new construction, Dr. Caldwell cited the amounts allotted by the state legislatures to the university systems of some of our neighboring states. North Carolina received for the year ending June 30, 1949, $33,970,500 for this purpose; Tennessee, $11,000,000; Florida, $14,000,000; and Alabama, $5,540,000.

It was pointed out in a pamphlet prepared by the Board of Regents that these allocations had been found insufficient and that on the basis of reliable sources it was expected that the amounts would be substantially raised for each state by their respective legislatures during the next two months. "Why can't Georgia find a way to enable its colleges and universities to keep abreast of those of its sister states?" was a question from the pamphlet.

In his address to the General Assembly, Dr. Caldwell said that it was impossible for the state to receive Federal funds for its edu-

MISS MARTHA SIMPSON

SIMPSON TO REPRESENT G. S. W. C. AT GA. TECH'S 'ENGINEER'S DAY'

Chosen By Vote of Students At Assembly January 19

Miss Martha Simpson has been selected to represent GSWC at Georgia Tech's annual "Engineer's Day." The "Day" is set tentatively for April 9, although April 23 is an alternate date, and activities are planned for the entire weekend.

Engineer's Day at Georgia Tech is a program of engineering exhibits, athletic events, and social functions, designed to interest people in Tech and its educational efforts as well as in the engineering profession. The "Day" is sponsored by Tau Beta Pi, the engineer's version of Phi Beta Kappa.

In connection with the annual formal dance, the Engineer's Ball, Tech customarily selects a Beauty Court from photographs submitted by students. To the end of achieving a Beauty Court representative of the entire state and country, Tech has invited GSWC to select a beauty queen so they may honor her and the College at Tech's greatest annual function.

Hoping to have eight schools represented, Tech plans to select an Engineers' Queen for 1949 and two attendants. This selection will be based upon a study of photographs submitted by the schools represented including one portrait and one full length picture, and one informal snapshot.

Photographs of members of the court will be used for publication in the local society pages in Atlanta, and they hope to get national magazine coverage on the event.

Miss Simpson, from Athens, Ga., is an active Freshman, holding membership in the Home Economics Club, the Sports Club, the Sock and Buskin Club, and the Glee Club.

Officials Attend Four Conferences

Faculty members from GSWC attended three conferences held this week in Atlanta.

Mrs. Claude Knight, Assistant Professor of Education, and Miss Leonora Ivey, Professor of Physical Education, attended the Conference on Teacher Education held January 27-29 in Athens. Among the out-of-state consultants which were present at the meetings were Dr. Alonzo F. Myers, Director of the High Education School of Education of New York University; Dr. W. E. Peik, Dean of the College of Education, University of Minnesota; Dr. Maycie Southall, Professor of Elementary Education, George Peabody College for Teachers; and Miss Elsa Schneider, Specialist in Health and Physical Education, U. S. Office of Education.

Dr. J. Ralph Thaxton, Acting President, attended the Teacher Education Conference in Athens national system without matching them, and that this cannot be done unless the requested $10,000,000 is appropriated. Among other taxes on the financial

Cup Won By Sophs During SGA Week

On Wednesday, January 19, Miss Carolyn Mathis, President of Student Government, presented the SGA Cup to the winning class of "SGA Week," the "Silent Sophomores." Miss Betty Buckner, president of the Sophomores, accepted the cup for her class. (Picture on page three.)

The Sophomores won the cup by a wide margin, having accumulated only one court warning during SGA Week to the Junior Classes four, the Senior Classes five, and the Freshman Classes twelve.

The cup which the winning class won is a fifteen-inch silver cup engraved with "S. G. A. Award—1949." This cup will be awarded the class which, each year, has the best record according to the number of court warnings per student.

Students To Hear 1st Piano Quartet

The First Piano Quartet will perform in Thomasville Monday night, January 31, under the auspices of the Thomasville Entertainment Foundation. Student tickets have been made available at GSWC at the reduced price of $2.40. A bus, chartered by the college will provide transportation to Thomasville for those wishing to attend the concert.

The program is divided into three sections. The first contains works of older composers such as Bach, Haydn, and Schubert. The second section includes several works of Chopin, Wagner, and the more modern Ravel and Prokofiev.

The works of more recent composers are included in the last section. Some of these are Debussy, Paderewski, and Sarasate.

A New Point System?

At the student meeting held during SGA Week, a vote was taken on the advisability of changing the Point System to limit only the number of offices a student may hold rather than the number of clubs she may join. All but two of the students who attended the meeting (and the number present was discouragingly small) voted for this change.

The majority seemed to believe that limiting club membership is unnecessary because merely being a member is not time consuming. They think that it is unfair to prevent someone from belonging to a club which she wishes to join. To the minority this seems to be a weak argument.

When the Point System was originated to regulate participation in extra-curricular activities, the initiators hoped that it would help to improve the quality of campus organizations as well as be a means of making it necessary for students to distribute their time and interests wisely, and of preventing campus offices from becoming concentrated upon a small group of leaders.

We have a tendency to join every club which extends a bid because of the prestige gained by having our names on the rolls of many organizations. Before the Point System we often joined clubs in which we had no real interest. We complained when we had to go to meetings and we fussed about the dull programs the club presented. But we were the ones who wanted to join. It was our club and if the programs were uninteresting it was our fault.

When it is necessary to limit the number of groups in which we can participate, then we will be careful not to become members of ones in which we have no real interest. Clubs with a small, active membership will be more valuable and enjoyable than ones with large, uninterested memberships.

The suggestion has been made that some of the closely related clubs combine into one. By having fewer clubs with wider spheres of interest, students would be able to include more subjects in their extra-curricular activities without the necessity of participating in several meetings per week. And, after all, some twenty-three organizations does seem like a large number for a small college. Having the Point System limit only the number of offices one can hold would accomplish only one part of the original purpose of the system—that of distributing campus offices among a larger group of students. The other aims are equally important and should not be ignored.

And in conclusion... guess who cast one of the two dissenting votes?

A WORD FROM THE HONOR SOCIETIES Are We Being Stingy?

A little girl's father had a moth-eaten overcoat—he also had plenty of money, but he refused to buy himself a new coat. The child's comment was: "Mother, Daddy's stingy to himself!"

Are there moth holes in the overcoats of what we'd like for people to think of us—of what we'd like to think of ourselves? Are we stingy to ourselves?

If we think carefully, we'll probably find that regardless of what our grades are—A's, B's, C's, or D's—the chances are that we have not done our best. If we have not put out our best efforts, we are cheating ourselves of arts, skills, opportunities, and certainly of knowledge.

When teachers suggest that two hours a day are necessary for the preparation of an assignment, they are not trying to insult the honor graduate or star basket-ball player. Over many years of study and planning, they have found this to be the minimum amount of time that should be put on each subject to insure a sufficient knowledge of the materials they assign each day.

Spending two hours a day on each subject does not mean that we must put aside all thoughts of extra-curricular activities. It is necessary to remember, however, that the fundamental reason why we are here at college is to acquire the beginnings of an education—the kind of an education that comes from association with brilliant thinkers who have gone before us, and they are to be met in books—with thought and concentration on our part.

We are the only ones who can "take ourselves in hand." When we make excuses for things we should have done, or should be doing, we are cheating ourselves. If we could only learn to DO things instead of making excuses for why we have not done them, then our time in college would be well spent.

Are we being "stingy to ourselves?"

BOOK REVIEWS

By MAMIE BELLE JORDAN
PILGRIM'S INN—By Elizabeth Goudge.

PILGRIM'S INN is a very colorful book with enough surprises to hold the interest of almost any reader.

When Nadine Elliott left her husband during the war and tried to take care of their five children, she found the going very difficult. She found it even harder when she fell in love with her husband's handsome young brother, David, a noted actor. Grandmother Eliot finally succeeded in persuading Nadine to return to George, her husband, everyone knew she still was in love with David.

Nadine and George took over an old inn in the country and worked it over into a beautiful home which became a symbol to the children and to the parents. There Nadine found the courage to let go her hold on David's life and enabled him to fall in love with Sally Adair, daughter of a famous portrait painter who had come to stay at the inn.

For them, and the many other characters in the book, the story is brought to a very happy ending.

The style of writing and the vivid imagination used in the descriptive passages clearly shows the ability of the author, who will be remembered also for GREEN DOLPHIN STREET.

By ELLEN SMITH

No matter what the weather, GSWC can always boast of one Snowflake on its campus—and this one has gender, too, the masculine kind.

Overheard in the House in the Woods — Julie: "Hey, Edwina, which one of these dishes is a pie pan?"

Ann Smith puzzled at breakfast as she tries to figure out which "Duh!" means "yes" and which means "no."

Overheard in Senior Wing of Senior Hall—"I've got a date tomorrow! I've got a date tomorrow! I've got a date tomorrow!"

Sherla Miller being gently urged to keep her mind in the class room as she absently-mindedly answers "Sir?" to Miss Price.

Celeste Purvis trying to demand head-line space in the CANOPY to announce the coming of Herman Crawford.

graduation was attended by many "WC'ers. Even orchids were present. That was in the days of men, Moody Field, and the Rec. Hall.

Who's Interested In Graduate Study?

News comes in every day from colleges and universities urging our seniors to do graduate study. Fellowships and scholastic awards totaling to more than a thousand dollars are offered by these institutions. European universities as well as those here in the States send bulletins and some of these are very interesting, indeed.

Backing up these offers, the Honor Societies here at GSWC have a fund for graduate study where the students may borrow money and are required to pay back only one-half of the amount... the other half is a gift from the Societies.

With such opportunities as this helping a graduate to do more work in her major field, or if she chooses, some other field, it is unfortunate that only three or four of the graduating class are planning to further their study. It may be the lack of publicity concerning these Fellowships is the cause for the small percentage taking interest in them or it may be the lack of sufficient urging on the part of faculty and students that is keeping the graduating class from following up these offers.

Fellowships from foreign schools include such universities as the American Graduate School in Denmark at the University of Copenhagen and Aarhus and the American-Scandinavian Foundation. Here at home Duke University, Bradley University, Ohio University and many other schools have offered Fellowships.

General information regarding these Fellowship may be found on the bulletin boards in the Administration building and in Senior Hall. More specific information may be secured from Dean Jenkins.

"Luck O' The . . ."

Broodings On the Night Before . . .

Luck. That's what I'll need tomorrow when I have that dreaded test, but I better not depend on just Lady Luck to get me by. After all, I do have a book and a few notes, so maybe I'd better glance at them. Lady Luck just might let me down. She's pretty dependable usually, but . . .
 Next Day . . .

It is a good thing I did, for question number one would have floored even Miss 'Luck!

Well, since the above escapade, I have long decided that Miss Luck was not a very good friend of mine. In fact, I doubt that she is even a speaking acquaintance.

Now, don't get me wrong: I don't advocate studying ALL the time, for, as the old saying goes, "All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl," but a little studying might help!

Many of us could utilize our class time to better advantage . . . you know what I mean, do something in class besides plan our Sweetheart formal or decide whether to play tennis or golf in the afternoon! Chemistry combined with day dreams yields day dreams with chemistry given off as a gas. Day dreams won't suffice on an examination come March, either.

Too, the rabbit that donated his left hind-foot to grace your key-chain, probably would be better off with his foot than you are with it!

If you stop to recall, you will find that all too many of us rely on some kind of hocus-pocus to determine our grades and habits of studying. Such things as, "See a pin and pick it up and all that day you'll have good luck"; "little Willies"; and the afore-mentioned rabbit's foot and Lady Luck, are all very often used as excuses for not studying.

Oh, well. There are people who don't have the "Luck o' the Irish" and they still exist. It's a known fact that quite a few folks have managed to get along even though they weren't Irish!

Humm-m-m-m still, I wish I had some of that luck to help me out tomorrow . . . Come, Come, Lady Luck, Come grace my desk a while! I need ya'.

All In Time

By JINX SMITH

Life sho' does get tedious! If you don't believe me, just ask Jinx. Why, only this morning we were discussing the hectic state of the world and things in general. We exploited everything from the art of making coffee to the Taft-Hartley Bill. That's where we stopped. Reason: insufficient probable cause.

Problems and more problems! Why, a body can't even get decent sleep at night now-a-days without worrying about whether they will have pleasant dreams . . . whether they'll hear the alarm go off in the morning . . . or even the fact that they might not see the next day. Just little irritating things like that are what make this life-versus-problem merry-go-round.

And it is one big ride around a circle, believe that! It may be about the next big date, last year's hem-line, today's assignment, or . . . well, take something like this. (Nothing personal you understand. Just a little talk 'twixt me and Jinx.) " . . . should I study Biology this period . . . after all, I haven't been doing too much work on it . . . but there's so much material . . . and we couldn't possibly cover it all in class . . . and since it's such a large class, I probably will not be called on . . . and that would be just so much time wasted . . . but what if we have a test . . . no, I really doubt that we will . . . then again if . . . " And that goes on until the minutes have flown, and time has solved the problem for you.

Terrible, isn't it? When you begin to worry about the "cold war" crisis, poll tax in Tennessee, snow in California, the KKK in Georgia, or maybe why you didn't see that car coming . . . then comes the cloud of confusion and despair!

Can so much living be worth it? Can all these affect us? Is there any way out? And thus a phrase is coined, "What to do?"

Well, as it went in the conversation, " . . . seems as though there is a choice . . . you can either face it, or if you aren't up to par on doing that, turn your back on it."

We considered, then, the matter closed . . . summed up in a few simple words. You see, it only takes a little concentration and thought to solve . . . thought? . . . concentration? . . . oh, no . . . I just remembered . . . that Physics test Monday! . . . and with all this precious time gone! O well, I'll just steal a note from Scarlett O'Hara to end this and hope . . . "Tomorrow's another day!"

I'm In The Mood For Food!

By MAMIE BELLE JORDAN

During my sojourn at this hen house, I have experienced extreme hunger; the kind to which my mother is want to refer as "chronic hunger." It isn't because I don't get fed properly at meal time. There's just something about the college atmosphere that makes me feel hungry even when I'm supposed to be full!

The task of keeping me supplied with food has been quite a strain on my mother. All day long she slaves away in the kitchen, creating delicate morsels to help appease my wolfish appetite and allay my gnawing hunger. All day she ponders over what to make next, and how best to get it to me after she has prepared it . . . and then what happens? Thirty minutes after its arrival here at the college, it is being looked at with greedy eyes. Forty-five minutes later, it is being sampled. An hour later, I am wondering what my mother is going to send next.

Eating seems somehow to be so utterly futile. Ten minutes after eating, I find myself rummaging in the bread box for something else. Some doctors are of the opinion that people eat too much anyway. They say that by eating so much we are digging our graves with our teeth. In that case, I've dug one foot in the grave already.

One of the main troubles with having to eat all of the time is the interruption caused by classes. If I didn't have to attend so many classes, I might have time to eat enough. I considered taking a small lunch to my classes with me, but my roommate informed me that this would be considered offensive by my classmates.

The most trying time of the day, I find, is my golf class. It comes just before dinner, and needless to say, I am always famished by that time. I suppose it's a good thing that I'm very interested in golf, because I usually get so engrossed in my game that I don't realize how hungry I am until I find myself leaning weakly on the club and my opponent far ahead of me. After I reach a certain point in the game, I find it necessary to putt the remainder of the way, regardless of where my ball lies. Luckily, my roommate takes the same course and is there to help me stagger back to the room.

Night before last, I was seized with a terrific headache. Nothing that I could do seemed to give relief and I was on the verge of a physical collapse. Then someone remembered that headaches are sometimes caused by hunger, and I discovered that it had been two hours since supper, and I had had absolutely nothing to eat since then!

I felt much better after having a light snack of cheese and crackers, dill pickles, two pineapple sandwiches, three cups of coffee, four cinnamon rolls, and two slices of cake. In fact, my headache was gone completely!

Yes, there is something about the college atmosphere that builds up one's appetite . . . and, need we say, breaks one's parents!!!

SPORTS SIDELIGHTS

By BETTY WATERS

Golf Tournament

Well, it's beginning--the Golf Tournament, that is. They tell me that they are playing a "match" game. I guess you all know what that is--you that are going to play and win points for your team toward the Plaque. And if you haven't signed up yet you'd better see Polly Mann.

Polio Drive

While we're speaking of entering tournaments and playing games, we ought to stop and consider those thousands of people who can't even walk! The Sports Club has sponsored the March of Dimes here on campus and either your Dormitory Representative or a member of the Sports Council has come around to your room in the past few days to ask you to contribute to this worthy cause. Anything that you contributed will aid in providing help for these stricken people.

Tallahassee Trip

Just the other day we got a letter from our friends down Tallahassee way inviting us to participate in a "Sports Day" they are planning. Anyone who wishes to enter any of the events is welcome to come along with us.

There's not too much in the way of facts to tell about the planned "Day" yet, but we'll tell you more about it in the next issue of the CANOPY.

First Match Games of the Quarter

Be sure to hunt the news article elsewhere on this page concerning the first Match Games of this quarter. Those points sure are piling up for the Plaque and the Lambdas (oh, woe) are in the bad (sob). Remember, to play in the Match Games you must have at least three practices -- you just can't play without that many!

Stars of the Week:

Mann and McDonald

Here and now we want to present two girls who were outstanding in Wednesday's Match Games. First, Winnie McDonald, Lambda, who scored nine of the ten Purple points. With her excellent passing and shooting, Lambda McDonald certainly deserves the spotlight as "Star of the Basketball Match Game."

To share the spotlight with Winnie is Kappa Polly Mann, who polled the four points which won the Soccer Match game for the Kappas. First, in the second quarter Kappa Mann made the first goal of the game with a clever shot, and second, in the third quarter again scored to bring the final Red score to 4.

Purples Top Reds 10-8 In Basketball

The first match games of the quarter got off to a good start with the Lambdas and Kappas splitting the winnings.

The Lambdas began the quarter by battling a tough Kappa basketball team to a 10 to 8 victory for the Lambdas.

The first score in the game was made by the Kappas' June Pitman. After a fast and tricky beginning, the first quarter settled down to a regular back and forth exchange of the ball, each team closely guarding the other.

A fine display of the Kappa forwards highlighted the second quarter with the Lambda forwards holding their own under the stiff Kappa guarding.

Betty King, Red, made the second score of the game to make the game in the Kappa's favor. Jackie Norton, Lambda, and Ruth Miller, of the Kappas, displayed fine forwarding technique in the third quarter.

Fourth quarter was really the Purple quarter with Winnie McDonald piling up the score to climax the fast and exciting game.

Starting line-up was:

Kappa		Lambdas
Pitman	F	Norton
Miller	F	McDonald
King	F	Story
Smith	G	Mullis
Han	G	Williamson
Crowe	G	Tuggle

Substitutes for Kappas were Mary Jo Lott, Jean Stewart, Virginia Chandler, Sue White, Betty Mims, Ruth Miller, Martha Simpson, Doris Gothard, and Bobbie Watson; for the Lambdas, Jackie Norton and Ann Owens.

Kappas Win Soccer 4-2 Over Lambdas

At five o'clock the soccer game got underway with the starting lineups composed of:

Lambdas		Kappas
Alderman	F	Bryan
Bennett	F	Mann
Briggs	F	Cheshire
Tuten	F	Story
Keeffe	F	McLendon
Odum	HB	Tullis
Harmen	HB	Roberts
Sikes	HB	Tillman
Noell	FB	Justice
Bowen	FB	Gibson
Griffin	Goalie	Dinkins

In the first quarter the much activity on the part of the Lambdas ended with no score. Polly Mann, of the Reds, made the first score in the second quarter by a surprise attack on Goalie Griffin. Excellent passing in the second quarter to climax the first score was executed by the Kappas.

Third quarter found Bet Alderman doing some intricate passing and quick foot-work. Kappa Mann scored again in the game to bring the score to 4-0 in favor of the Reds. In the fourth quarter toward the end when anything and everything can happen, Lambda Bet Alderman, with only two minutes of playing time remaining, scored to make the final score 4-2 in the Kappa's favor.

Seniors Work Hard To Raise Money

The Senior Class, working to raise enough money to pay expenses on a class trip, has been selling candy in all the dormitories on Friday nights. Tonight, they they will also sell candy during intermission time at the performance of 'Hamlet.'

Anticipating the trip, possibly to New Orleans, the class is planning a minstrel, a beauty show, and a skit night.

Guess Who?

By GLORIA JOHNSON

Rather tall she is
And also somewhat slender
She does just what she pleases
And almost no one can hinder

She's a brown-haired sophomore
With eyes nearly blue
She'll know, oh, so much history
When with college she's through.

She's a junior and a town girl,
With hair of very light brown
She's a good representative of her group
When time for such comes 'round.

Speaking doesn't trouble her much,
And she does it very well;
In English she will major --
What's her name, can you tell?

"My Lament"

or

"COME ONE COME ALL,
TO THE WAILING WALL"

By TOMI CARTER

I'm tired of being a shoulder,
On which all the boys can cry,
I want someone to notice the rest
of me
To be the one for whom they sigh!

I'm through with being a wailing wall,
And listening to other people's woes
I can't afford it any more
The salt water's ruining all my clothes!

I'm tired of hearing of moonlight
and roses,
And lovers' broken romances.
I want someone to love me just once,
And take me to sweet summer
dances!

Yes, I'm turning over a brand new leaf
I'm going to be different, you see
I'm tired of being wailed on,
They're going to wail for me!

Today Ends Polio Drive At GSWC

The March of Dimes drive on campus sponsored by the Sports Club, is being completed today. Miss Morris Smith, President of the Sport Club has announced. This is the first year that the club has not conducted the drive in the whole of Lowndes County. Miss Smith stated that the drive was too large for a student organization to undertake. It is being sponsored in the county by the local Kiwanis Club.

During this past week members of the Sports Club have contacted students, faculty, and clubs on campus to ask for their contributions.

In charge of student donations were Luceil Bauer and Sue Nell White, Converse; Martha Jean Boatwright and Elaine Cheshire, Ashley; and Ellen Odum and Mary Ann McLendon, Senior. Sister Griffin contacted the town girls. Miss Sherla Miller solicited contributions from the clubs and Miss Jean Mullis from the faculty.

Dr. J. A. Durrenburger served in an advisory capacity to the Sports Club during the drive.
