Traynham Chosen State Delegate At Youth Meet

Miss Margaret Traynham of Brunswick, has been notified by Governor Herman Talmadge of her selection to serve as a youth representative on the Governor’s Committee on Children and Committee on Youth, under the coordination and direction of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers. The purpose of the committee is to plan for Georgia’s participation in the Mid-Century White House Conference on Children and Youth to be held during 1950. A representative from the staff of the White House Conference will meet with the Georgia committee to help in formulating plans.

The first White House Conference met in 1950 and since then there have been meetings under Presidents Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, and Franklin D. Roosevelt. No more were held until after the war. For the past four years a conference has met annually to discuss means for the betterment of children.

The conferences have accomplished such things as the creation of the Children’s Bureau in the Federal Government, children’s labor legislation, and the most comprehensive statement of the needs of children to date. A five-year document.

Miss Traynham was one of the two who participated in the new Student Training program offered at GSWC.

Barter Theater Presentes Soon In Artists Series

On Tuesday, January 31, the Barter Theatre of Virginia will appear in Valdosta. In the high school auditorium at 8:30 P.M. They will present to the audience Molière’s “The Imaginary Invalid.”

This is the story of a hypochondriac who is completely dominated by his physician. The title role is played by Frederic Warriner who will be remembered for his performances last year in “Hamlet” and “The Hasty Heart.” A top Barter cast supports Warriner in the comedy.

This is the last of the Artistic Series presentations for this year which have been enjoyed by all who have attended.

The Barter Theatre, the only state sponsored theatre in America, first made its appearance in Valdosta in the fall of 1946 when they appeared in Shakespeare’s “Two Gentlemen of Verona.” In the past four years they have brought such outstanding plays as “The Skin of Our Teeth” and “The Man Who Came to Dinner” to Valdosta audiences. This theatre is known for discovering and starting on the road to fame and fortune many great actors and actresses including Gregory Peck, Bob Porter and Dean Stockwell. The students recently went to Denmark to participate in the annual presentations of “Hamlet.” Among the cast who have journeyed abroad was Miss Jo Patterson, native Georgian from Hinesville.

Campus Scene

Many things have happened here in the two weeks people have come back from Christmas vacation. A lot of people didn't. Some brought rings and put on wedding dresses and gowns in the waste paper basket before leaving. Others had put on their own dresses and gowns before leaving, and they brought them back to wear when they got back. Things are getting back to normal. Marjorie Newell had a wonderful time spending the holidays with her family, and she brought back a lot of wonderful memories. Nancy Thornton is up to her old tricks again. She was performing in the hall one night, singing her favorite song, and she called it. She also ended up holding up the steps.

Weekend was a pretty good one, and they're coming back to Senior amidst a lot of excitement.

Everyone is glad to see Mr. Gabe back in class. Class was held everywhere. Not only does Gabe go back and forth to his home, but he has been visiting with his male visitors. Some of the Frenchmen have been coming back changing their scenery lately.

One of the Emory men is seen walking on campus one morning at the early hour of 8:30. Newspaper delivery boys are excellent in getting to be rather common in senior but the people who get them don't like it. The boy who has one was one Monday night all the way through to four in the morning before he had to run all the way from the hour the bell rings. Long distance, did say?

Not many to people who are out to see the play the last two nights, but the dog who was in the play is a real dog. The dog who was not a record or even a real dog. Who or what, you ask? Well, we'll let you in on the dogs. That lovely sound was none other than Miss—you guessed it. Every night Thornton.

Congratulations, congratulations, to Miss Sawyer and her fine cast and production crew who gave us a wonderful play. Score another success for 1950.

Have you heard the dancing party last night? Everyone at GSW was there, but some were left out.

One of the most enterprising chickens is the flock picked up the dog before I could reach it and not being able to swallow it immediately, started running, with Egghead and me hot in her rear.

That's how I learned there was a wonderful play. And I still feel that no one can beat it.

The thought of men on campus brings much to the mind of the ones concerned, but when the thought became centered in the average, female sense, there were mixed emotions.

The thought of the men on campus was a reality and will begin to change the lives of people.

Many things may be changing in the next few months or years. The idea of the men on campus at first aroused joy in the minds of the ones concerned, but when the thought became centered in the average, female sense, there were mixed emotions.

The night editor was trying to learn all the facts and figures on the job and called what she heard. "I was wondering why they got upset when she asked the party who answered the phone, 'Are you set-

The editor had made a slight error and had dined the University Infrmary.

There won't be much changing of Student Government rules and regulations to compensate for the new students and to keep strict watch over the female members of the college. There will be new dormitories built on campus and thus a new and larger campus. The new students will make the life on campus much more interesting.

Of Cars and People

By Gloria Johnson

Do you ever make crazy observations about other people's cars? Well, it is surely an interesting line of study for one who makes observations about other people and their dogs. I found that I close ly associate the two and sometimes even identify one by the other, because of my constantly seeing them together.

This is especially true of the faculty members; I can usually tell the cars in the parking lot and recognize each faculty member by the car. And when one gets a new car, it takes me quite awhile to get accustomed to seeing him in it. Some of them just never look the same in different automobiles. However, one faculty member says he'll be glad to be identified with his new car, for there is one just like his old one that stays parked in front of beer parlors, and now that he has a new chevrolet, people won't house him in being there any more.

Another way in which I associate people and cars is by considering their respective types. Have you ever noticed that some auto­ torists are of the quiet, studious type, while others are by considered "show-offs"? Some folks' automobiles fit, are too expensive, are not necessary, are a great bother, or are decorated vehicle: the temperamental one is paral yzed by its owner, while the ill natured person is typefied by his new car.

Some folks' automobiles fit, are too expensive, are not necessary, are a great bother, or are over-decorated vehicle: the temperamental one is paralyzed by its owner, while the ill natured person is typefied by his new car.

Some folks' automobiles fit, are too expensive, are not necessary, are a great bother, or are over-decorated vehicle: the temperamental one is paralyzed by its owner, while the ill natured person is typefied by his new car.

But no matter if cars do not fit, they are too expensive, or are not necessary, are a great bother, or 'too dangerous, members of the race must possess them. This was well illustrated on a recent trip. I happened upon a group of car owners who were sitting around a table, smoking cigars, and discussing the weather. I asked them why they were smoking cigars, and they said that it was too cold to drive without them.

A man looking very pitiful and tired, with a white beard and a black eye, came up to me and said, "My family is hungry, they have no clothes to wear, and they are going to stay out of school because they have no clothes to wear, we cannot pay the rent. If matters get worse, we'll have to sell the car!"

People and cars are funny.

We are considering having a social event to raise funds for the Philharmonic society at Emory. This spot, which is in the last stages and about to close, is the last to go. We will have a ball so that the unfortunate citizens may dance again, too. However, all during the month, desserts are sent to the organization which the great lady who own the house sent to. There are also other drives on other of your drives. This organization is the National Council of Women. The Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

I am writing this column in order to point out that the joint play of "You Boro" is in the last stages and about to close. We will enjoy the joint Emory-McIntosh play of "You Boro" and will enjoy a great big success. Our congratulations to those who have worked so very hard and strove to make it a success. Have a ball! See you soon.

NEWS BRIEFS

Miss Helen Wolfe, State Supervisor of all the Home Economics Clubs, spoke to the GSWC Club Saturday morning at the Club house in the Woods. Miss Wolfe spoke on how to get the clubs started. Miss Wolfe, of Armstrong College in Savannah, was on campus all day and was entertained by Miss Sarah Weems, supervisor of the club, and Miss Mary Anne McLeod, president. It has been announced by Thad Pitt, president of the Junior class, that the Junior-Junior Prom will be held on the weekend of May 19 and 20. This is the annual weekend of dancing and frolicking given by the Seniors to the Junior class.

In connection with the annual Sweetheart Formal, the Sophomore class will offer formal invitations to be sent to the dates. This is the first time this has been done.

Miss Margaret Traynham, Social Chairman announced the schedule for After-Dinner Coffee. These clubs will be in charge of the Sweetheart Formal.

School Begins Annual Polio Drive for 1950

The year 1949 brought the highest incidence of infantile paralysis since 1916. More than 40,000 children and adults were stricken with the crippling disease. This record-breaking incidence, together with a tremendous carry-over from 1948, broke the backs of the chapter, state, regional, national, and the year-round service program of the National Foundation.

The 1950 March of Dimes campaign will be larger, and interest for GSWC students this year. President J. Ralph Thaxton is the campaign director for the Eighth District, and Dean J. A. Durrenberger is the campaign director for Lowndes County. They have been busy for some time making preparations for the annual nation-wide campaign which started last Monday and will continue through the remainder of the month.

In the past years, the Sports Club at GSWC has conducted several campaigns for the March of Dimes. This year the Club will not be responsible for the entire county, but will conduct the campaign on the GSWC campus. They hope to have a faculty and student participation of 100 per cent.

The unusual urgency of a record breaking March of Dimes for 1950 is a challenge to each student to do her part in filling the miniature iron lungs which are the coin collectors this year. By filling these miniature respirators, the real iron lungs may be emptied. Also, further research and the educational programs of the National Foundation are aided so that everyone will be ready to fight the new outbreaks which may hit many areas next summer.

If we all contribute our share to the March of Dimes, Dr. Durrenberger said the National Foundation will be able to live up to its pledge to give all the necessary care and treatment to polio patients, regardless of age, race, or color.

Children coming home from school for the holidays bring all their dirty clothes.
