Ford To Edit '51 Pine Cone; Bush Chosen Business Manager

Miss Edwina Ford of Sylvester has been appointed editor of the Pine Cone for 1950-51. Miss Mary Brand, president of SGA, also announces that Miss Ford is to edit the Student Handbook for the next year. She has been an active member of the YWCA since her freshman year, and has served on the Cabinet for three years. She is a member of the Dance Club, the Math-Science Club, and the Home Economics Club. She has held the positions of first and second vice president of the Student Government Association during her junior year.

Miss Ford has chosen Miss Lucy Bush of Colquitt to act as Business Manager for the Pine Cone. She has served on the Y Cabinet her junior year, and on the Student Council. She was elected secretary-treasurer of SGA during the past quarter. Next year she will serve in the capacity of chairman of ECA. She is a member of the Sociology Club, the English Club, and the Glee Club. She held the offices of treasurer of the Glee Club and junior class.

Miss Ford plans to announce the remaining members of the staff at a later date.

Campus Clubs Elect Officers

With the beginning of Spring quarter the various clubs on campus elect officers. The following clubs have held their elections for next year:

Math-Science Club:
President, Peggy Phelan
Vice-president, Luciel Bauer
Secretary-treasurer, Dotsy Deadwyler

Fine Arts Club:
President, Elinor Jones
Vice-president, Leila Harmon
Secretary-treasurer, Doris Johnson

Glee Club:
President, Mary Gibson
Vice-president, Melba Moon
Secretary-treasurer, Alice Carter
Assistant secretary, Anna Marangos
Librarian, Jackie Baldwin

Dance and Buskin:
President, Elaine Ryals
Vice-president, Mary Elizabeth King
Secretary-treasurer, Mary Holder

Owen to Represent Valdosta State at Engineer's Ball

By SUE BELLOFF
Miss Mary Owen has recently been selected by the student body of VSC to represent the school at the Engineers' Week Ball which is to be held at Georgia Tech on April 29. This annual affair is the biggest and most important social event which takes place at Tech.

As a special feature of the night they crown a Queen of Engineers' Week Ball and her two attendants. They will be selected by photographs prior to the ball by, it is hoped, Vice-President Barkley. The queen, her attendants, and court will be composed of representatives from the nine women's and co-ed colleges in the state of Georgia and four girls selected by the Tech student body.

The girls will receive publicity in The Atlanta Journal, The Atlanta Constitution, their hometown newspapers, radio and television stations, and possible national magazines. Expenses for the representatives, to include transportation to and from Atlanta, meals, corsages, and a room (probably in the home of a faculty member) will be furnished by Georgia Tech. Tau Beta Phi, national honorary engineering society, whose members are selected for their honor, character, integrity and personalities, will furnish escorts for the weekend.

This is not the first outstanding honor Miss Owen has received at VSC. She has been President of the Student Government Association for the school year 1949-50, she was selected Beauty of the Junior class, and has done outstanding work in dramatics, playing the leading roles in BRIEF MUSIC and MOOR BORN. The students and faculty wish Miss Owen the best of everything for her trip to Tech.

Miss Herndon has been proudly exhibiting her newest possession—a black cocker spaniel who answers to the name of "Butch."

May Day-Play Day Plans Announced

The biggest day on the Valdosta State College campus this spring will be April 29 when we have our annual Play Day-May Day festival in honor of the May Queen and her court.

Selected senior girls from the high schools and Junior Colleges in this area have been invited to spend a day on the campus. The activities planned for them will begin with registration and assignment to color teams. Each girl loses her school identity in an effort to win points for her team.

The morning is taken up with games and contests between the teams and demonstrations of sports on the campus. There will be exhibitions of swimming, archery, and golf. After a picnic lunch under the pines, the guests will attend a Fine Arts program to be presented by the Speech and Music Departments.

At three o'clock there will be a tour conducted over the campus to show the visitors the activities of the various departments. Open house will be observed in all buildings and there will be special exhibits in many of the classrooms.

The climax of the day will be the crowning of the May Queen, Miss Joanne Story of Albany. The Queen and her court will then see the festival in their honor presented by the Dance Club and the Glee Club.

The cuts which will be allowed for Spring Quarter have been posted. They are:

Classes meeting 5 times a week, Jr. Col. 7; Sr. col. 13.

Classes meeting 4 times a week, Jr. col. 5; Sr. col. 11.

Classes meeting 3 times a week, Jr. col. 4; Sr. col. 8.

Classes meeting 2 times a week, Jr. col. 3; Sr. col. 5.

Any student who takes more than the allowed number of cuts in any class will automatically be placed on cut probation.

The students are also reminded that three cuts are the equivalent

Complete Canopy Staff Chosen

Miss Elaine Cheshire of Colquitt has been appointed to hold the position of Business Manager of the CAMPUS CANOPY for the coming year. This is her first position on the staff of the paper but she has worked on the ad staff of the Pine Cone, previously.

Miss Doris Gothard is to serve as News Editor for the coming year. She has been an active member of the CANOPY staff since her freshman year, acting both on the news staff and as Sports Editor.

The incoming Feature Editor is Miss Betty Henderson. She held the position of Business Manager for two years, and has worked on the feature staff.

The Sports Council appointed Miss Ruth Miller to be their representative on the staff as editor of the Sportslite.

A newly established office, that of Associate Business Manager, will be filled by Miss Blount Trammell.

Miss Leila Harmon, the former Circulation Manager, will act as make up editor. The position vacated by Miss Harmon will be filled by Miss Mary Catherine "Bunker" Hill.

Miss Mary Holder will serve as Exchange Editor.

A complete staff of the CANOPY appears on page two of this issue.

Laura Ann Bowen has been issuing invitations for her friends to visit her at San Quentin. One day she purchased a candy bar from the Business Club Store, and had eaten half of it before she realized she had lost the nickel with which she was going to pay for the candy.

Betty (Red) King, according to her young sister who is spending the weekend with her, is now in the second grade in college.

Sign on Converse door: "CANASTA—WE HAVE IT." Quarantined, maybe?

Misses Mary Ann Dykes, Jackie Sikes, and Thadyne Pitt have been chosen to lead their respective classes for the next year.

Miss Dykes has been a very outstanding member of this year's freshman class. She is a member of the Glee Club, Math-Science Club, Philharmonic Club, and the Y Cabinet. She is to lead the Sophomore Council for next year. She plans to major in biology and minor in mathematics.

Miss Sikes was elected to be the treasurer of the Y Cabinet in an election which was held earlier this year. She holds membership in the Dance Club, Sociology Club, the Ad Staff of the CANOPY, and the B. B. U. Council. Her major field is Social Work.

This will be Miss Pitt's second year as president of her class. She is majoring in biology and is a member of the Math-Science Club, Sock and Buskin, the Glee Club, and the Romance Language Club.

The junior class has chosen Miss Millie Jean Chitwood, as vice-president, and Miss Dot Keffe as secretary-treasurer for next year.

The presidents of the classes will serve as members of Student Council, and will represent their classes on this group and on Superior Court.

The other classes will elect the remaining officers some time in the near future.

Griffin To Head Men's Council

The men students of Valdosta State College met recently and elected the officers for the Mens' Council, which has formed to serve in somewhat the same manner as the Student Council of SGA.

Since the number of men students is still small the council will consist of only the three officers, president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer. These officers will meet with the officials of Student Government to formulate the regulations concerning membership in clubs, and various activities which are carried on about the campus.

George Griffin of Georgetown was elected to lead the group as its president. He is a member of the junior class and plans to major in physical education if this major is offered next year.

Another junior, George "Bouncer" Smith of Valdosta, was elected to the position of vice-president. His main interest is in the field of art.

The secretary-treasurer of the group is Fred Folsom from Nashville. He is a member of the freshman class, and has chosen the field of medicine for his profession.

Swimming Pool Rules Posted By P. E. Dept.

The swimming pool regulations which have been posted in all of the dormitories and on the bulletin board inside the pool enclosure state that the following rules must be observed by those who wish to use the pool:

The pool is not available for the use of the students' dates.

Sunbathing is permitted in the pool enclosure provided all Bath House and pool regulations are observed, except at the following times: Sundays during any swimming class, between one and three daily.

Use of the pool is allowed at times other than those listed below. (Continued on Page Four)

Bare Facts

If I were asked to class attitudes I might make the following divisions: that of cooperation, that of apathy, and that of antagonism. Of course, there are many other types of attitudes, and varying degrees of those mentioned, but my main concern is the rather ordinary forms of each which we all see every day.

We are all given certain rules by which we must live, not only here at college but in that thing which is called society. Almost anyone will admit that some rules of society are unnecessary, but any one of us will go on and abide by them, no matter how trivial we may think them to be.

Of course there are those who feel it is somewhat of a disgrace to conform, and make an issue of being different, and having the title of "Non-conformist." In reference to us here at school, I would call these people the antagonistic. There are some few who will admit that there are rules which have been made for everyone to follow, but why should they?—They are not just anybody; they are members of a clan known as "privileged few." And when they are corrected for their shortcomings or punished by the courts which have been set up, they rebel at having any control levied over them.

The cooperative are just what the name implies—they are those who are willing to abide by what is the best thing for the group as a whole. They have enough foresight to consider the future, and not just themselves and the obvious present. They too are none too happy at being corrected, but they are at least willing to take the consequences of their misdeeds.

The apathetic are those who present the greatest problems—they are neither good nor bad, they exhibit an air of utter unconcern. They are the ones who are willing to sit by and take no part in any of the affairs of the school, and shun their opportunity to voice an opinion of any sort.

There is one thing which is true—each one of us has a chance to change his or her attitude, but it must be done by the individual, and by none else. Every person at some time exhibits or harbors all of these attitudes. The thing which should concern each one of us is: which of the attitudes will we let be the one which is the most predominant in our outlook.

What are you? Cooperative? Apathetic? Antagonistic?

To The Student Body:

It seems to be somewhat of a custom that the incoming editors of the CAMPUS CANOPY make their bow into the journalistic world with a notice of some sort.

In doing so, we would first like to welcome our new students—the women students who have enrolled this quarter for the first time, or have returned after an absence, and our "Cods." We want you to know that we are glad to have you here, and hope that you will find in Valdosta State College all that you expect and want.

[We want to urge any one of you who feels the "urge" to use the CANOPY to express your opinions on controversial issues, school affairs, and any other questions which may arise. It is only with your cooperation that this can be a successful publication.

Everyone should feel free to make any suggestions concerning the paper, and give any criticism that you have of it. We want you to feel that it is yours, and not the possession of the group who makes up the staff.

"Roll 620 Please"

That's the size film my camera takes, I'm thinking of taking some pictures soon. My camera takes pictures pretty well, recording in a blurred and fuzzy fashion, and occasionally a clear cut, excellent and impressive picture is caught in the film. This picture I treasure for its clarity, I remember it very well. It may be either a very good or a very bad photo.

There are over 300 persons here at VSC who are taking pictures every day of you and me. They have vision 20-20 or 20-30, at any rate, they notice you and they form an opinion. This opinion is usually one that will stick, the longer they remember it and the more it impresses them. The camera which people use is a versatile structure since it is also connected to the human brain, and the brain is capable of remembering a long time.

Perhaps you are thinking "this sounds like one of those 'this is a watchbird; this is a watchbird watching YOU'." Well it isn't that at all, I'd only like to impress upon you the fact that you are noticed very much, everywhere you go, and if this could be impressed on us, perhaps there would be some changes made. There might be a big change in some of the faces that greet you in the morning with a grumpy stare, or a change in the manner of some people we all know. We need a change, there is no question, we must have it for our own sakes.

When you next go down the to the dining room, or anywhere that you do go, why don't you try to make a good impression, you'll make an impression all right, make a good one. A good print in the camera will add greatly to the collection already made.

elevator we rode down.
Gone, for they caught me, and their judgment comes too soon. I hear the Student Council calling, "Your case comes up at noon."

I'm coming, I'm coming, for I durst not tell you "No."
I hear their stern, cold voices saying,
"To the 'Soc' you must go."

Gone are the times when we passed upperclassmen in lines. Gone is my cash, for they've taken it in fines.

Gone is my youth, for worry has made me old.

I hear the Student Council saying, "How often must you be told?"

I'm coming, I'm coming, for I'm scared to tell you "Nay."

I hear the merciless sentence passed, "On the campus you must stay."

GOING HOME?

Myrtle Mountie suppressed a sigh;
The hour for leaving was drawing nigh,

And as she thought of the months she'd waited,

Her heart was gay, her hopes elated.

She banqueted—this VSC girl—
And went to carols, her head awl

With thoughts of all the attention she'd rate,

And all the mornings she could sleep late.

On the depot-bound bus she was starting to cram,

When someone gave her a telegram.

She groped for something on which to lean,

For she read, "Don't come home, we're in quarantine."

KING

Through the Looking Glass

A mirror is indispensable to most of us. The piece of silvered glass is the most honest friend that a person can have. It shows every flaw, every imperfection in our appearance, no matter how hard we try to cover them up. If our posture is poor, our hair uncombed, or our clothes wrinkled our mirror will inform us of the fact without a quailm.

Remember the old queen in Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs? She went to her faithful mirror every morning and asked,

"Mirror, mirror on the wall, Who's the fairest of them all?"

and the mirror did not mind in the least telling her that she was not the fairest.

We need a mirror like hers, not to tell us when we err in appearance, but when we hurt someone's feelings, snub someone's kindness, or quarrel with our neighbors. Man's quest for ages has been for that unknown element which would reveal what we lack in our lives to make us happy. Robert Burns wrote,

"O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as ithers see us!"

What would your reflection be in a magic mirror that revealed your thoughts and actions to you every day? Would it show a person who cheats on tests when the teacher isn't looking? Would it show a person who doesn't do her share of the cleaning up in the room? Would it show a person who shuns membership on clean-up committees? Would it show a person who never goes back to the kitchen for anything in the dining hall? Would it show a person who monopolizes the telephone all afternoon? Should we stop before we get too personal?

Examine your reflection carefully the next time you're in front of a mirror and try to imagine what kind of character reference the mirror would give you. The Scripture states that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." The reflection that you cast on your mirror comes bouncing back to you, and all aspects of the phenomena can't be explained by physics.

"For life is the mirror of king and slave,
'Tis just what we are and do;

Then give to the world the best that you have
And the best will come back to you."

What kind of reflection will come back to you?

This Is My Prayer

To be awakened by the song of a bird,
To feed on the smile of a friend.

To spend the morning listening to soft voices, to far music, to the wind in the pines, to patter of raindrops,

To dine on the pink of a camellia,
To see the afternoon thru the yellow of a butterfly, the autumn colors of a maple, the slowly receding tide,

To feast on a glowing sunset,
To spend the evening with a good book, walking in the rain, in lively conversation,
To sleep with the knowledge of a day well lived;

To begin the week with a zeal and a goal
To end the week in a happytiredness;

To begin each year with staunch resolutions
To end each year having kept them and having accomplished something;

To enter life without a purpose,
To end it knowing that some good has been done for having lived it;

For the happiness of others in every way,
For the universal good will and love,
For the beauty of the inner person,
For faith, hope and love;

This is my prayer.

A "Co-ed" Speaks

By TOM CROUCH

The CAMPUS CANOPY dated September 21, 1942, carried a headline stating that "Men Students are Admitted at GSWC." If you were to read further into this article you would find that, "This fall for the first time in its history, the Georgia State Womans College is admitting men as students at the regular sessions. This is an emergency measure brought about by the war and the subsequent moving of Emory-at-Valdosta to the Atlanta campus of that university."

We were called the "Measly Thirteen" by the rest of the GSWC student body.

Time seems not to touch the college even though years, wars, change of presidents, post-war reconstruction, internal and foreign strife have marked the coming, going, and coming again of the Co-eds. Many of the same instructors are here, and some of the policies of the school are about the same. The campus is much as it was then—only prettier since the palms are growing tall and the azaleas bloom so profusely.

The greatest change can be noticed in the appearance of the young ladies—they show none of the anxieties of their war-time predecessors drooped around and just waited until the next shoe stamp, sugar stamp, shipment of cosmetics and sweethearts came due.

Speaking as a Co-ed let me assure that it is a privilege to have the opportunity of attending a senior college here in south Georgia instead of having to run clear across the state. It saves time, expense and undue effort. This change in the University system and its Valdosta branch has long been needed and as a future citizen of this section I look forward to the time when this college will be one of the greater educational centers of this area.

Question of the week: Is love really blind or merely nearsighted?

Memoirs to the Male-Men

By BETTY HENDERSON

Well, here I sit, pencil poised and barren of brain. In the years B. C. (before Co-eds), I could write on most any subject dear to the hearts of us girls, but do you suppose the boys would care to know how I got pinned (Phi Safety, that is), or the inside dope on how to get a man? Not unless they were Scotland Yard candidates. All this leaves me right back where I was—(read the first paragraph again) I got several suggestions, none of them particularly inspiring, so I'll just recount my experiences with these critters thus far, and let it go.

To begin with, I raced over to the Ad building about 31½ minutes late for Art, and as I reached out to open the door, it suddenly flew open in my face. Electric eye? Nope—Fred. Well, to say I was speechless is to speak truth. I decided I needed a drink to fortify myself, and as I leaned over the water cooler—SPLAT! Right in my eye. Spooks? Nope—Jack. Undoubtedly I turned pale with shock, because by the time I had made my way down a hall full of open-mouthed girls and grinning boys, no less than 3 Georges and one Eddie had offered me blood transfusions. Do tell! When I walked into class, guess what I found there—do you suppose Bouncer felt bad when I stared? Not wanting to make the rest of the boys feel left out, I have managed somehow to find time to stare at all of them.

Don't be surprised at what you may hear. The other day I exclaimed "By George", and two boys turned 'round and waved good-bye to me!

I might mention here that certain of the faculty have been very helpful in getting the boys and girls together. Rumor has it that our own Dr. D. issued the advice that we feed the brutes; Dr. Gulliver was saddened by no male in his Shakespeare class and as compensation, lets us out 15 minutes early each day to gawk at the unsuspectings loitering in the hall and on the green.

This could go on forever, but the call of the Wild Goose (ed. note: that's spelled B-E-D) is ringing in my ears, and the arms of Morpheus beckons so, I say farewell 'til we meet next issue.

Any complaints from the mentioned males about the phoniness of this article will please be addressed by my lawyer.

Double Idemnity

By ELINOR JONES

Have you ever been griped

And peevied right down to the Bone?

And it seems as though

Nothing will leave you alone?

Have you ever wished that

You were dead?

How many times, "Farewell, dear World"

Have you said?

But still—

How oftener have you lost

One dear thing that means so much

Yet so little does it cost?
Something that is a necessity of life

And brings hard work,

And so much strife.

Well, I have.

And at this time

Nothing is is that is so sublime.

It is a loss

Not a gain

When your last squeeze of tooth-

paste
Goes down the drain.

A certain junior has been fascinated by the reports she has heard about Dehydrated Water. The manner in which you restore this water to its original state is to place some of the Dehydrated Water in a container, and then pour some ordinary water over it.

DUEL WITH THE SUN

BETTY KING

With spring comes Mrs. Jenkins' pansies, young men's fancies, and gnats. Also, at least on our campus, the annual migration of the sun-worshippers begins. Girls in search of a tan trek down to the swimming pool daily to expose themselves to the South Georgia sun. Although a simple habit, there are certain unwritten rules that go along with this custom of sun-adoration.

To the average person who is unaccustomed to soaking up the benefits of old Sol everytime he ventures from behind the bathhouse, you possibly don't know what to take down to the pool except yourself, in a much abbreviated sun-suit. After your initial trip, you learn that the minimum equipment for your morning of sunbathing consists of: a pillow, a large towel, dark glasses, vinegar (when rubbed on the skin, it "draws" the sun, and after all, that's what you go for), a nauseating rust-colored mixture of baby oil and iodine (this mixture is not as potent as the vinegar) a dog-eared copy of the current or even last year's "True Romances"; a textbook so as to create an illusion of studying just in case your professor should cruise over in a helicopter to see if you are spending the requested two hours on his course; a box of stationery, a bottle of ink, bobby pins, playing cards (and it is suggested that cards and baby oil be kept separate); and a portable radio so as to keep up with the episodes of "Linda's Last Leap", "The Green Spider," "The Conjured Phantom," or whatever your current favorite radio program happens to be. Some girls take a bottle of a solution known as peroxide—but that is another tale—a hair of a different color, so to speak. My only experience with the potion resulted in my banishment from my own home until my hair "grew out" to its natural shade.

After placing towel and pillow in the best place for sunning, you discover that you will have to prevail upon some kind sucker to rub the vinegar on your back and shoulders—and any other part of your anatomy that you can't easily reach. The vinegar should be distributed evenly so that you won't look like a spotted leopard. Your fellow sun-worshippers are playing bridge, reading, or merely lying there overcome with inertia—which is just glorified laziness.

By the time your body is reeking with the acrid stench of vinegar you are ready for that glorious golden tan which is so beautifully advertised by the sun tan oil people you discover that a light post, or a tree, or some such obstacle is casting a shadow on your back. So you break camp, like Longfellow's Arabs, and silently steal away to another sunny spot. Naturally this necessitated move separates you from your friends so that you cannot hear their intellectual comments of "I pass", "Two no-trump", "Pass", "Pass."

Also it causes you to lose most of your carefully-kept history notes to a sudden breeze, and eventually to the water, which heretofore has contented itself with a coating of green scum, but now has a complete account of Louis XIV and his mistresses happily floating toward the drains. As you dangle over the water trying to retrieve your papers and holding on by a toe, it inevitably happens that Dr. Thaxton, the entire Board of Regents, and a Survey Committee pass by outside the enclosure, on an inspection. Sportslite

By RUTH MILLER

We've really started the quarter off with a bang—so many people out for soft-ball. It's wonderful!

A beginners' team is being organized so there is no excuse for anyone not to come out after supper Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. This team will have match games and receive points for the plaque as well as the other team.

The Sports calendar is filled to its capacity this quarter, having tennis, archery, golf and badminton tournaments plus swimming and softball practice, Retreat, and the Aquacade. Five match games have been scheduled so the Kappas and Lambdas should stimulate the "team spirit" and be sure to get enough practice.

Freshmen Tennis Tournament

All freshmen be sure to sign up for the singles tennis tournament; it is posted now, so be sure to get your name up before the list is taken down. From the number of Freshmen seen on the tennis courts lately this tournament seems to have the makings of a good one. So come on out. Freshmen, this is your chance to show your skill with a tennis racket.

Competitive Swimming

Swimming practice for the competitive portion of the aquacade will begin soon, so everyone watch for an announcement. You don't have to be an expert swimmer, the least you can do is to try out, so when the coaches announce practice go out if you can qualify for any of the events. The breast stroke, back crawl and free style will be used in the competitive events.

Installation

The installation service for our new officers for the Sports Club will be held Tuesday night, April 18, at 7:00 at the pool. Everyone is invited to attend, it will be short and there will be plenty of time for studying afterwards.

First Match Game

The first match game in softball was played Wednesday night. It was a close game with a lot of team spirit exhibited throughout it.

Only two innings were played but it is hoped that in the future, as the days become longer, we'll have time for more.

Our next match game will be played in two weeks so come out. You still have time to make the team and to help your team win some of those much coveted points for the plaque.

Sophomores Second For Winter Quarter, Seniors Win Cup Race

Miss Edwina Ford has announced that the Senior class won the Student Government cup race for the Winter quarter. This is the second time this year that this group has won the cup. The sophomore class finished second in the race, the freshmen third, and the junior class last.

The purpose in the cup race is to try to cut down on the number of court warnings received by the dormitory students, and thus reduce the number of people appearing in court. The results are figured on a percentage basis, and the class with the lowest percentage of court warnings wins.

The original plan was that the winning group would be entertained with a party by the other classes, but due to a full schedule last quarter a money prize was awarded instead. It has not been definitely decided what the prize for last quarter's contest will be, and now the race will be run in the future.

Miss Mary Brand urges that each student do her best to receive as small a number of court warnings as possible, and to study carefully the rules by which she is governed.

Senior Recitals To Be In Near Future

Two members of the senior class, Miss Mary Owen, and Miss Annolene Bone, are planning to present recitals within the next few weeks.

Miss Owen plans for her recital to be at eight o'clock on Tuesday, April 18. She is a speech minor, and will give her recital in this field. Her program will consist of monologue based on the life of Anne Boleyn, one of the wives of Henry the Eighth.

Miss Bone is a piano major and will present her recital on Monday April 24.

The program is to be made up of music by composers from the time of Bach to the present day.

These recitals represent the work of four years in each of these student's chosen field. The entire student body is invited to attend both of them.

Swimming

guard is with the group and if permission is obtained beforehand from the Physical Education Department. Recreational swimming will be at these times: Tuesday, 4-5:30; Thursday, 4-5:0; Friday, 4-5:30; Saturday, 10:30-12:30; Sunday, 3-5; and everyday from twelve to one.

Scheherazade with Elaine Ryals as the Sultan. Other characters will include Ladies of the Court, dancers and performers.

A deviation from the swim theme will be modern dance which will be performed by the lead characters, who are members of the dance club.

We would like to take this opportunity to recognize the Swim Club of LaCrosse State Teachers College, LaCrosse, Wisconsin, from whom we obtained all the materials upon which our program will be based.

Duel

tion four "just looking over the college." You wish that they would look OVER you and not at you, but you try to look dignified anyway in your ignominious pose.

After they pass on, you settle yourself down again, that is if your toe didn't give way and give you a dunking along with Louis, et al. It is amazing to observe the stubbornness that you exhibit in sunbathing. Sometimes a wind straight from Greenland's icy mountains descends on you and chill bumps spring up like the mole-hills of which mountains are made. With chattering teeth and blue lips you stay as long as there is a fraction of an ultra-violet ray coming down.

The time passes, and if you survive the cold waves, shadows, telephone calls, low-flying airplanes, and tidal-waves, you are ready to gather up your material and go in.

While going down the hall to your room, you are promptly met by hordes of girls asking, "How much did you get?"

This misleading question means, of course, how much tan did you get. The typical answer to this question is, "Oh, I got a lot."

But to the question of "Do you hurt?" the stock answer is always an emphatic, "No."

In the privacy of your room you get out your remedies—baby lotion soft-skin cream, and strong tea. The best remedy usually is just to find a soft surface and lie down and die.

You look at your toasted epidermis and determine what shade you now are. According to the length of time you were exposed, you are either tomato red, fuchsia, scarlet, beet-red, lobster-red, magenta, coral, or crimson. But no matter how good your remedies are or how much you peel, you usually come out of the ordeal looking like Revlon's latest shade of nail polish—"Pink Lady."
