Senior class's production of "Dr. Deadrock, I Presume" takes on specific characterization. Miss Mary Jo Lott, Douglas, will reign as Queen of the May during the annual May Day festivities; her Maids of Honor will be Misses Betty King and Misses Ruth Darby and Ethel Williams; her court will include Misses June Knight, Blakely; Mary Jane Watson, Hamilton; Mary Kay Mathers, Blakely; and Freda Porter, Hamilton.

The seniors are planning a trip to Miami and Cuba during the spring holidays. Arrangements have been made so that the members of the class will finish their examinations by March 17. They plan to leave on Tuesday morning, it will be their last time to keep the natives from making hamburger out of Peep.

Dr. Deadrock, I Presume Takes Honors

The senior class's production of "Dr. Deadrock, I Presume" or "Dr. Dreck, I Presume" or "Dr. Deadrook, Roast-House, Nellie," was first place at the Y. W. C. A.'s annual comedy contest.

This production dealt with Dr. Dreck, a direct, no-nonsense person, who, despite being behind the scenes, had an ear for every voice. Dr. Dreck is characterized as a "TV Classic" by Life Magazine. The dramatization, co-authored by Misses Ethel and Barbara, has been called the "MARGA" and "MARGA" is the most desirable characteristic, leadership, scholarship, and as well as pleasing personalities and well-roundedness.

Until this year the campaign has been called "MARGA" and "MAC" contests. The Sigma Alp's in person their yearly campaign and recognizes the honored students on Honors Day during spring quarter, with the best four featured in the PINE CONE in their profile and the seniors' choices of Best All-Round Boys and Girls on campus.

The queen and her court will be featured on May Day when a festival, in the form of a pageant program, will be given in her honor.

The court and the candidates for queen and maid of honor were elected by the senior college students, juniors and seniors. The entire student body voted on the two receiving the highest number of votes to select last and second maid of honor.

Three students were chosen as the most representative girls of their class. Although, the selection is in beauty, beauty is well representative in this group.

On Being Educated

MILLER

Now is the time for all retiring editors to say a few well-chosen words of farewell and, possibly, a few of encouragement to that person stepping into the editorship.

One retiring editor has stated it so plainly as to just say, "I'm tired. Dead tired." This applies not only to the editor, but to the business manager or anyone else who has been plugging along for a year.

During that year there were many vacant columns that have started us in the face when they should have been filled long before. And those most uninspirational moments when one should feel most creative for the good of the rest are other amusing now. There were times when the editor refused to do its duty and caused a few difficulties. But all of this is as much a part of the CANOPY as any line of type that has appeared in any issue.

But the bit of satisfaction that one might receive when a piece of work is done always gives strength to go on to the next ones with hope and promise for a bigger and better operation than it is all said and done, it is possible to be convinced that it was worth it.

No, you're wrong! This isn't what is commonly known as griping. It is just a prelude to asking you, the student body, to give your new editor a cooperation that any editor would like to have.

Right now, is a most opportune moment to express my appreciation to the staff, the faculty and the students, as a whole, for all of the cooperation I have received in the past year.

Yes, after thirteen issues "I'm tired. Dead tired." But it is as the proud parents have been heard to say of their children, "I wouldn't take a million dollars for this one, but wouldn't give ten cents for another..."

You couldn't buy my year with the Canopy but you couldn't sell me another one.

So here's to you and what the future holds for you. Be seen you 'round the campus.

To Park Or Not To Park—

That is the question: whether 'tis nobler to walk a few extra steps to save a flower, bush or tree or blade of grass a bit of trampling down, or save thyself a bit of wear and tear by parking on top of the campus or not.

I am sure that as we near the close of the year, the student body, and that is you, has done much in beautifying the campus and that we could count on the cooperation we received.

Plans for summer school are developing, and the young men in the student body who are subject to military service should consider the offerings of the summer school to speed up their degree before being drafted into the military services.

All students should begin thinking about their spring program and make the necessary changes when the Registrar's Office announces the time for these changes.

With spring just around the corner, student activities should pick up even more and I am sure that, as we near the close of the year, the students feel as I do—we are having a very successful year.

A Necessary Evil

This is news to no one—but final exams are a part of our lives. The coming of exams brings with it many different feelings. There are feelings of fear: some for what these "things" may be. Others may be able to override this fear with the joy that the quarter is on its way out. Possibly, among the many, one has been threatened with the evil many times before, feelings about exams are nil—may harbor the feeling that they are necessary evil, maybe, not so necessary, just evil.

The question that now arises is what have you done or what can you do as far as these exams are concerned?

When you get down to it—it's a little late to really help much. It's true that one might stay up all night before an exam and memorize practically all the material for as much as humanly possible that has been covered during the quarter. Then we once thought that such persons have to worry about is experiencing a complete blank when it comes to put it on paper.

As mentioned above; it is humanly impossible to memorize all the material the night before an exam. So there's always the possibility of memorizing one thing and being asked something else, Nothing like being pessimistic.

The general consensus of these experts is that the time to do anything about an exam is not when the quarter is around but rather at the beginning of a quarter. True, this is of little value as far as the winter quarter of 1952 is concerned but after few and while holidays there is a new quarter.

If you experience any difficulty with the final exams, try starting out on the next one. These necessary evils at the beginning of the next quarter.
