Fraternity Undertakes Campus Project

Fili垄断 Fortune will assume responsibility of a weekly radio program for V.S.C. to broadcast over WCrew. The program will also go to the campus of VSC and Emory University, when work in close cooperation for this purpose. It is hoped that a success for both groups will not be the time for one another. The committee will be held at the First Baptist Church.

Rev. Z. Hayes, pastor, will deliver the invocation.

Members of the Women's Glee Club under the direction of Clayton Logan, will provide the music for the program.

Cinderella Takes A Holiday

The Home Economics Department under the direction of Miss W. W. of Valdosta presented a student fashion show at the Strand Theatre at 7:30 p.m. on May 14th.

All of the names of the models were chosen from the very informal sun-dresses to the very formal crisp forms.

The impression of most students was that Fibbi Fortune was a "citi-on-hip" and that she proved to be so adept at doing such things as "Country Girl" and "I Want To Be A Cowboy's Sweetheart." To say the least, everyone in the audience enjoyed the singing very much and if Fibbi should ever be seen in a job, she could easily join in with the Dickens, Middlelin, Tillie D. and some of the other famed singers of their style.

Fibbi Fortune's message was the presentation of the year by the students selected from the group of thirty-eight.

Fibbi and Charles Hancock again appeared between the songs and by various hosts Fibbi "specials." They seemed to have decided to come on the top eight girls who were then presented by the Fibbi Fortune team.

Dr. Thaxton and Air. A. coercion of the residence halls council seemed to have a very hard time securing a means of transporting the council members to their college at the lakes. It was thought originally that they would be on one of Mr. Zanta's city buses, but upon learning Friday morning, after dinner, that the price of a ride on said bus would be $30, the president of the two organizations had a council of heart attacks and started running in circles in order to get rides for the seventeen girls who would be walking if the failed.

Two very kind and generous men, Dr. Thaxton and Air. A. McCaig, came up with the idea and several changes were made in the plans of transportation.

The YWCA and Women's Residence Halls Council members did not have a council of heart attacks and got the job started running in circles in order to get rides for the seventeen girls who would be walking if the failed.

Miss Carter proved to be very Christmas to her group Friday night with her tumbles acting. Ask her to perform for your group today. She does it perfectly.

RIPPIE FROM THE PRESIDENT

--We are rapidly drawing to the conclusion of another school year. In checking over the mid-term reports, I notice that a great number of students who do not have satisfactory grades at mid-term. With the three weeks remaining, there is ample opportunity for a great deal of hard study. I would urge all of those students who had unsatisfactory grades at mid-term to put more time to their studies so that they will bring up their averages and their work will be satisfactory for the term.

We were very pleased with the results of the questionnaire on the Artistic Series that we distributed this week, and the Committee will do its best to work out a program for next year in line with the suggestions handed in to us. We appreciate your interest in the Artistic Series, as it is your Artistic Series, and a certain portion of the expenses of the Series is to be paid from the Student Activity fees. We are, therefore, anxious to provide the type of program that the students request.

As we draw to the conclusion of this year, you are urged to make your schedule for next year, and plan now for more classes. A student should make his dormitory reservations right away. This will help us a great deal in planning for the summer and next year.

I wonder how old Miss Jones is. Quite old, I imagine. They say she used to have the most beautiful voice ever heard. He is gone—some cat got him.

My first kiss

Jim Copeland

Now most boys steal their first kiss about the age of fourteen, but I was just four when I first kissed my grandmother. We were on a picnic in the farm and found out there were some girls in the world besides my old maid aunt, Fufi Fudge. Boy she was enough to make Kinsey go back to a report of the ux life of a kangaroo. Ah but back to my story.

What was my story. Dr. J. J. Whydyl-doit, says the only way a man and woman can stay together till death do them part is for the old gal to pass the lover boy out of a fourth story window. Yes, thank you J. J.

But there I was on my seventeenth birthday and I had a date. Well it took quite a few years for the time I can take her home and kiss her goodnight. I'm ready to go to the dormitory and stay out till eleven. OK. Finally the hour comes and ahone with the girl I'd been dating all last year, and talk and building up courage. Just as I lean forward what happens? A light bug goes down her neck and jumps the back of the rose garden and goes inland. We're sitting on the sofa and I make another attempt. I've got her by the shoulders and whisper, "You little minx. She jumped straight up and landed in the middle of the floor. She said the funniest she ever felt when someone told her that. No doubt. The spring in my arse had bust loose.

We're wasting time climbing around so I sit on the floor with her. No preliminaries this time. I kiss her and I know how to handle her. Now my mother is enough to get out of the way but when mine is wiggling and her lips are going like a rabbit, there isn't much you can do in the way of a kiss. We look around and finally find the water bucket. I kiss her and put them out of smeling distance. At home we always lock the cows up and never let them walk around the house. So I'm ready to go again. I say to myself, "Coppe old boy. Just run up and grab her."

His address was completely off the map. Our glasses met before our lips did. I wipe the alcohol away say, "Hmmm. Kinda dark and wet down here. But then the bottom of the woods."

Seniors graduate in Drexel

Sam Todd

On Monday morning June 8 the VSC seniors graduated in a very impressive ceremony. In the spring when Professor Green was in Drexel he was shining, flowers blossoming, birds singing, and Mile Brunch prancing in the background. Nowadays, when Professor Green is in Drexel, he is not the same. The seniors filed into the park to a musical selection, "Nature Boy", rendered by Mr. White on his hollow log drum. After everyone was seated, Mr. Logan led the congregation in two songs, "Don't Fence Me In" and "I Don't Want to Leave the Congo".

Dr. Thaxton welcomed the parents of the graduates and all visitors and introduced the speakers of the day. During Dr. Thaxton's introduction the audience looked around and whispered, "No preliminaries this time. I throw my arms around her waist and let..."

The main speaker, Dr. Luther Burbankus of the University of Timbucto School of Botany who delighted everyone with his description of the progress of African agriculture.

After Dr. Burbankus' address, the validators' address was given by I. Q. Einstein, Jr. Of Raburn Gap, Georgia. His address was entitled, "Education: The Most Important Subject Yet." Einstein Jr.'s speech consisted mainly of a discussion of the effect of the theory of relativities on the average man- woman also.

As the diplomas were about to be distributed a sudden deluge of rain descended. Although the audience was slightly water soaked, the seniors remained perfectly dry for the hood-sisters, ever alert, whipped out parasols and shielded the seniors from the elements.

Everything proceeded orderly until Mr. Brunch swooned by the rain threatened to sweep the levies away and panic threatened the audience. We re waiting for the rain to stop when it finally died out where I went. I told her to take three steps to the right and one forward and she couldn't miss. HA! She made a bull's eye.

This isn't exactly how I planned it but at last we are alone. Only two of us. She can't get away and nothing else can happen. Just as our lips meet... I must go... "TO THE WOODS BY GEORGE TOTHE WOODS".

P.S. Girls, I'm still pronouncing prunes...

Dear Editor:

I have a pet in my yard that I have had for the last two years. We bought it at a pet shop. It is a beautiful cat. I have had it for two years and it has never been sick. But I have a problem. It is a pet. I need to know if I should keep it or not.

Do you have any suggestions for me? I would really appreciate it if you could help me.

Sincerely,

To the seniors

To the seniors:

Dear Editor:

Our four years at VSC are nearly gone. Soon we will begin knowing the joy of diplomas in our hand, and with eager ambitions anticipating mingled with sadness at leaving in our hearts. Certainly, whatever we graduate on our lovely campus, we know that in the future, in the auditorium, there will remain our class spirit of togetherness unspoil by bickering, because we have learned to like democracy in action.

The rest of the conversation was mercifully drowned out by static. I took advantage of this interruption by clawing out from under the rug where I had cowered in terror and switching to another station. "Not that I'm a coward" I thought. I switched to AM and put four bookcases and a desk against the front door, "but too many grey-eyed predators might not be good for one."

God's Out-Of-Doors

Being an ardent admirer of the extrasport open interest in the great outdoors has been much of my time to discover the natural and unadulterated beauty which everyone should enjoy living in my presence one individual that can't appreciate the wonders granted to us by God, and I shall seek for those that has been caught in the web of disillusionment and has never been able to free himself if life hardships.

Just spare a few precious moments and I will relate to you some of my most cherished observations of the past years of my enjoyable life.

Early one summer morning my father and I were walking down a calm and peaceful river just a couple of miles from home. The sweet smelling magnolias and bay trees were in bloom, casting a delightful atmosphere and spreading their blanket of pollen on the surface of the water. We were making a short trip from a point known as McGree's landing to Blue Springs trying our luck at the art of angling, and we had not done too poorly, as there was a collection if four yearling trout and seven red breed pearch in our live box. The sun was setting behind the clouds and we were having a delightful evening drink like a herd of ele­phants in some stream of the juniper, or other fading off in the distance.

English Club Holds May Meeting
The English Club met Tuesday night in the House in the Woods for its last meeting of the year. The new president, Rebeccah Cuthbert, was elected. Changes in the administration to membership in the club were discussed and passed upon. Starting next year those interested in the activities of the English Club other than majors and minors will be held to membership if they meet the qualifications. Cornelia Ashley, vice president, was in charge of the program. Six people from this quarter's creative writing class had been selected to read their best papers aloud. Each year the club has given as a award to the winner of these little contests. The award was won by Mrs. Marie Bermen, our exchange student. Betty King, outgoing president, presented the book, Literary Anteater, to the college garden.

Home Economics Club Meeting Held May 7
To final Home Economics club meeting for this year was held last Wednesday night, May 7, at the House in the Woods. Mary Gallagher, the newly elected president, was present at the meeting. Due to the lack of sufficient funds for successful operation, and the small number of people in the two clubs, the Fine Arts club and the Home Economics club plan to merge and form on big, strong club. At the present definite plans for the operation of this new organization have not been set up, but even though the two clubs are merging, each individual group will maintain its state and national affiliations.

Mrs. Hoke Smith, an outstanding member of the Valdosta garden club, demonstrated some very interesting ways of arranging flowers. The club members were much amazed with the simplicity of demonstrations which produced such beautiful and interesting arrangements.

On behalf of the club, Mary Smith, the retiring president, Barbara Howell, and Miss Wrens, the club sponsor, made a small effort to express appreciation for their work this year. —Barry
