The House in the Woods was the site of the traditional Filli rush party last Friday evening.

On hand to greet the rushes was the house committee. The Filli Fraternity Sponsors. As an added attraction, the married brothers brought their wives, who added the sponsors in the refreshment department.

After the initial greeting, entertainment was provided in the form of a Russian dance. President of the college held court on the stage and discussed Filli plans for the forthcoming year.

S U Sets Year's Goal; Make Plans For Convention

The Baptist Student Union has set as its goal the enrollment of every VSC student into one of Valdosta's Baptist churches. B. S. U. urges that each Baptist student find a church home while in college.

To Baptist students, B. S. U. offers a program of church fellowship and friendship, fully complimenting the academic college education.

Under the leadership of its president, Bill Gate, and director, Gene Briscoe, B. S. U. promises to be one of the most active organizations for VSC students. Plans are being made to send 20 delegates to the Southern Baptist Student Convention at Rock Eagle Camp, Eatonton, Georgia. Each Sunday evening of this fall, these delegates will be selected from all Baptist students invited to the convention.

Something of Value

By LAMAR PEARSON

Perhaps one of the best things a student can do is to develop an interest called reading. Among the shelves of the Richard Holman Library are counted books containing some of the finest things on earth that man has thought and written about. How many of you, may I ask, have read a book that produced some of the most notable reminiscences of Hemingway, the satirical writings of Lewis, or the moral realism of Dostoevsky? The best thing that any student can do is to develop an interest called reading. The University of V. S. C. is to develop good reading habits. The success of a person’s education is determined by what he reads and how much he reads. The reading improvement course and anyone who has any reading handicap should take a course to improve his reading.

Once a person has learned to read, he is able to open the world is opened for him. Now the problem is how to read. How can you explore the intriguing worlds of past masterpieces? I challenge you to explore the works of Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, Dickens, and even Shakespeare. Take some time to be sure that you will find something you enjoy. There are many good books on the shelves and you can find them. There are many good books around campus. I am sure you will find something you enjoy.

Letter to Editor

Mr. Editor,

I would like to be the first to congratulate the members of the SGA on their first edition. However, the second edition will be of more esteemed. My opinion is that the privilege of a weekly publication, a bi-monthly publication, and one of the best publications by the students. This is the opinion that through this small gesture the student publication can make a bi-monthly deadline? Just what does the institution of the privileges offered them—get them to carelessness grumble with their fellow students. The Canopy staff is not the one to advocate conformity; I am certainly not howl of rage—someone differs in his blasted opinions—so that there will be a group of lovely Southern belles to greet the incoming men— even though they didn’t offer to carry the luggage they sure added to the beauty of the campus.

If we are to keep the Canopy in operation, we must all cooperate and each student do his share of the work.

If you can aid the staff in anyway, please do not hesitate to do so. Please contribute NEWS.

Relieve Tensions...

(Continued from Page Two) Find this will take the steam out of your worries and even better give you a warm feeling of having done well.

One thing at a time. Pitch into a few of the most urgent tasks one at a time, setting aside the rest for the time being.

Shun the superman urge. Don't try for perfection in every thing. Decide which things you do well, and put your major effort into these.

Go easy with criticism. Some people expect too much of others, then feel let down when another person doesn't measure up.

Schedule your recreation. It is desirable for almost everyone to have a hobby that absorbs him in off hours—one into which he can throw himself completely and with pleasure, forgetting all about his work.

A Touch of Genius

Genius is in everyone. That's the conclusion of Robert L. Heilbroncr.

"If it were not," he says, "we could not grasp its works, enjoy its creations. In genius we see something of our own selves—a thousand percent brighter, wiser, more creative than we are, but ourselves nonetheless."

What is the mysterious quality which lifts a certain individual skyscraper-high above the rest of us?

Is it fabulous intelligence, heredity, "madness?"

Heilbroncr says genius has relatively little to do with intelligence. Nor is it the ability to perform dizzying mental calculations or a phenomenal memory.

Albert Einstein always had trouble with higher mathematics and Darwin complained all his life of his poor memory.

What then is genius? Creativity, says Heilbroncr. It is the ability for terrific concentration and to penetrate the dull facade of reality, to represent it in new and startling fashion.

Geniuses look at the world with the bright eyes of children, with a sense of challenge and novelty. Their ideas might not be immediately understood.

"But wait a generation or two," Heilbroncr says. "Our children will feel as much at home with their ideas as we do when we read Walt Whitman or look at the canvases of Cezanne. Society Darwin—all baffling geniuses of their day."
