Broxson Leads New SGA

In the recent campus-wide elections Jimmy Broxson received a sweeping vote of confidence from the students in being elected SGA President for the coming year. Lamar Pearson won a surprising victory to become Vice-President and Jean Hooks was elected Secretary. John Jackson will be SGA Treasurer.

Art Exhibit
Planned Soon

The art students here at VSC will present an art exhibit in the upper Rotunda of Ashley Hall on Honors Day, May 8, and running through Sunday, May 10, according to an announcement made by Joseph W. Pember, head of the Art Department.

Mr. Pember said that the exhibit will display work by students in the Art Structure, Commercial Art, and Ceramics classes. Selection of the pieces to be exhibited has not yet been made.

The exhibit selection committee will choose the best of the works submitted by the students in these classes, and the students themselves will bring in the works to the Rotunda.

There will be no oil paintings in the exhibit, but there will be many excellent drawings from the Art Structure students and by the Commercial Art students, as well as outstanding examples of ceramics. There is no limit on display, but all art students who wish to exhibit are invited to do so.

The exhibits will be in the exhibits on the walls, and the art students will be present when classes are not being held.

New Painting
In Library

The VSC Art Department has received a new painting to add to their collection. This painting is donated by Mrs. John Jackson, a resident of Germany.

The painting is a still-life of flowers, and is done in oils on canvas.

Dr. Whitehead To Speak Honor's Day

Wednesday, May 6, is Honor's Day in the art studio when classes will begin at 9:45 A.M. and last until 10:30. In the Rotunda of Ashley Hall, the art students will be presented with their honors for their outstanding scholarship records at V.S.C.

New Heads Appointed For Publications

New officers have just been appointed for the student publications for the coming year.

On the Campus Canopy, Jerome Clegg will be editor, with Dillard Ensley and Lamar Pearson as his associate editors. Business manager will be Steve Sevits.

The Pine Cone staff will have Emmett Taylor for editor and Marshall Brooks for associate editor, with Jacqueline Gaskins for business manager.

Steve Sevits will edit the V Book.

When the news of Secretary of State Dulles' current illness was announced to the public, the governmental leaders of the European nations turned their attention to the United States. They were afraid that an accident might happen to him and that the action of the state department would be.

Now, nearly two months after this problem arose, 46-year-old Christian is a member of the House of Representatives. He has been nominated for Secretary of State by President Eisenhower.

The general opinion among government officials on Capitol Hill was that the president was having quite a bit of trouble choosing the right man to carry on the duties of the state department. Under Secretary Christian Herter was considered capable, but he didn't seem to have a robust demeaning personality.

Assistant Secretary C. Douglas Dillon was equipped with the tools with which to dig the only limited amount of experience in diplomatic relations abroad.

The immediate picture did not indicate a strong and capable man to take charge of the forthcoming negotiations, and observers in the state department feared that a new man would be needed if the United States and her Western Allies hoped to be successful in the Berlin Conference.

History reveals that the fact in the past strong men were necessary to cope with the Open Door Policy in China. Teddy Roosevelt stepped forth with his "speak softly" policy, Woodrow Wilson ably and carefully worked out the foundation for the Old League of Nations following World War I. These are just a few cases in which a strong leader was necessary to accomplish the final goal.

On Saturday, April 18th, President Eisenhower publicly announced that Christian A. Herter had been appointed Secretary of State. He also stated that the path has been cleared for Mr. Herter quickly on his way as the country's number one diplomat.

The announcement was made in a quiet but dramatic news conference at the Augusta National Golf Club, the chief executive's favorite Georgia vacation spot. It now appears that few people were surprised at Mr. Herter's appointment, — only the element of "when" had been in doubt.

This morning Mr. Herter's nomination went before the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee under the leadership of Senator Fulbright. Supposedly this will be only a formal acceptance of Mr. Eisenhow's appointment since the majority of the Senate political leaders agree that Mr. Herter is naturally the best choice for the post.

The nomination will go before the Senate later on this week.

Sec. Herter will have very little time in which to prepare himself for the European Negotiations. He will soon leave for Europe. After his return he will be the April meeting of Western foreign ministers in Paris. He also will lead the U.S. delegation to the Geneva conference of foreign ministers with the Soviet Union on May 11.

Mr. MacMillan and other members of the English government have been looking upon the American situation with mixed emotions. However, it is quite easy to see that MacMillan is somewhat distasteful with the haphazard way in which the United States has handled the problem of selecting a new chief of the State Department. He would like to have seen that either Mr. Dulles or Mr. Herter would be at the summit talks — this may be because he has a personal interest in the outcome. The English people have a great interest in the outcome.

The main point of discussion among the Americans, and especially among the American political critics, is whether Mr. Herter will be as strong in diplomatic negotiations as Mr. Dulles. If he is, everyone agrees that the newly-appointed Secretary has the skill and intellect with which to carry on the duties of the department but there are doubts as to whether he does not have a strong reputation in foreign affairs.

Whether Mr. Herter will follow the directions of the President; whether he will take the initiative and prove to be a leading figure at the conference; or whether he will fail to negotiate a firm agreement with the Soviet Union; nothing is certain. The peoples of other nations are waiting, wondering, wondering if Sec. Herter will be the strong man who will intelligently cope with the present situation.

No matter what happens — the "eyes of the world are upon us."

Dot Harrell and Bobby Coleman Chosen As Week's Personalities

For personalities this week, Dot Harrell and Bobby Coleman have the spotlight. These two people would receive a credit to any campus and VSC is happy to claim them as their own.

Dot Harrell, junior from Donaldsonville, Georgia, is a secretarial science major with a minor in economics. He spent six months in Europe to complete his studies here and then to work as a legal secretary.

Two days a week lions, the new President of Alpha Zeta, incoming president of the Pan Hellenic Council, and girls dormitory representative to the Student Government Association. She was photography editor of the 1959 Fine Arts, a reporter for the Business Club, and is First Vice-President of W.R.H.C.

Her hobbies include swimming, dancing, and especially parties and partying. She likes boys, men, apple pie, chocolate, and basketball and baseball.

When an event was transferred to VSC from GSCW, it was their loss, and VSC's gain.

Luke, Secretary, and Mike Laside, Mr. Charles Shaw, a former V. S. C. student, who represents a prominent local firm in the area, spoke to the group on new research programs and career opportunities in this field.

Dr. Nevis attended the meeting of the Georgia College Trustees Education at Rock Eagle H Club Center near Eastonton, Georgia, on April 21. There were limited intervals between meetings usually during the lunch hour—so we have the opportunity to observe the beauty of this huge natural "garden" and to collect for the class use and for the college herbarium some interesting botanical specimens, which are not found in

Math-Science Newsletter

Mr. Clyde Connell of the Biology Department attended the annual meeting of the association of Southeastern Biologists at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, where he presented a paper before the Animal and General Zoology Session on April 17. The subject of Mr. Connell's report is Seasonal Lipid Levels in Key Population Groups of an Old Field Ecosystem.

We are interested in compiling a list of those Math-Science graduates of V.S.C. who are now members of college or university faculties (biomathematics). Please tell us if you know of any others, who should be included.

Dr. Davall and Mr. Lindauer attended the American Chemical Society meeting at Florida State University on April 21. Dr. Scleral of the Department of Chemistry at the University of Nevada, and at the University of Florida, Mrs. Mary Rogers Heiser (botanical technician), Mr. Emily Jobe Sprague (medical anatomy), and Mr. George Morgan Weese, Vice-president, Patricia South '59 are from the V.S.C.

Dr. Louis Untermyer gives a lecture on "What Makes Modern Poetry Modern," or, as he puts it: "How to Hate Poetry In Three Easy Lessons." Mr. Untermyer is a widely known lecturer and critic, and is the author and editor of some thirty-six volumes of prose and verse. His lecture was always witty, sometimes sardonic, and very informative, especially on the topic of how to teach poetry.
