500 Gather Here For Science Conference

An estimated 500 teachers and students of the 2nd and 8th congressional districts attended the Georgia Academy of Science Conference held at Valdosta State College Saturday.

Dr. J. G. Lester delivered the keynote address to the conference assembly on "Why Science?". The Assembly discusses science-related issues and aims to broaden the public's understanding of science, especially among educational institutions.

Following a short break, the teachers and students regrouped for a showing of the 1961 Georgia Science Fair film and a talk on planning high school science fairs.

After an early lunch in the campus dining hall, the group journeyed to Pough Hall, where they saw a lecture-demonstration by Bell Telephone on solar batteries and Telstar and saw the official film of the John Glenn space flight, Friendship VII.

Concluding the Science Conference activities, the Math-Science Club students conducted the teachers and students through the college laboratories where the groups saw actual experiments in biology, chemistry, and physics.

17 Frosh Vie In Wednesday's Election

By Sue Pendleton

With petitions in and posters up, campaigns rage on as SGA freshmen seek class offices. The campus seems to be divided over the returns on election day which is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 24, according to SGA President Tommy Joiner.

Presidential candidates include Gene Greneker, David Fuller, Jim Whitehead and Warren Isham.

Greneker, a native of Valdosta, majoring in science, is 20 years old and is a former disc jockey for radio station WCOV.

David Fuller is an eighteen year old pre-med student. He comes to VSC from Abbeville, Florida.

Jim Whitehead from Indianapolis, Indiana is 19 years old. He is a physical education major and he hopes to coach football.

Isham, who is 18 years old, is also a pre-med student. He is a native of Jacksonville, Florida.

The campaigner for vice-president are Jackie Cordier, Kay Powell and David Crane.

Seeking the office of secretary are Ann Smith and Sharon Smith.

Jane Maddox, Carole Williamson and Eddie Vickers are running for the position of treasurer.

Those campaigning for SGA representatives are Elaine Pitts for the girls and Bobby Pierce, Robert Owens and William Spillers for the boys.

The elections will be held in the public relations office from 9 to 10 on Wednesday. SGA members will administer the polls.

Regent Bryan to Speak

One of the leading educators in the state will speak here during the Wednesday assembly program. The speaker will be Morris M. Bryan, the vice chairman of the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia.

This will be Regent Bryan's first official visit to VSC. Regent Bryan, a native of Jefferson County, has been involved in some phase of education all his life. He graduated from Georgia Institute of Technology in 1937, where he majored in Textile engineering.

Following graduation Mr. Bryan studied Textile Engineering abroad for several years.

Mr. Bryan is now the President of Jefferson Mills, Inc., Jefferson City, Missouri. He is the chairman of the Board of Education in the Jefferson City school system, and is active in many Jefferson civic organizations.

Regent Bryan was first appointed to the board in 1962, and reappointed in 1969. Mr. Bryan is not only a successful Textile manufacturer and educator, but he is an accomplished speaker in demand by many groups throughout the state.

Wanted: Athletes

The United States Peace Corps has advertised that it needs about fifty athletes, both men and women who have participated in college sports projects in Africa. The duties will consist of training and coaching regional and national teams in various sports.

It is nice that the American government realizes the importance need for furnishing money and personnel for this necessary project. Perhaps there may be a little money left over so that we can send a few teachers, doctors, agricultural experts, or some other not so important personnel.

Apparently, Valdosta High School and the University of Alabama are not the only places where athletics get top consideration.

A True Friend

An unknown author has given us the following story. "When I inquired concerning a friend of long standing he replied, 'I don't speak to him anymore.' I couldn't believe that anyone who he shared deep friendship, kindness, and happiness, and who had possibly dissolve such money and association. All the beauty of friendship was destroyed because of one rendering centered around vicious lies. Imagine finding an error stand against a thousand books, and a hundred helpful actions.

Christ said to his disciples, 'I call ye my friends.'

The Big Struggle

It was a glorious summer, full of fun. There were the idle moments when there was nothing to do, but when evening came it was a sad summer too. The feline devil Kay moved in and poor Tammy was ousted. Enough to bring tears to the eyes of the cruellest heart.

But adieu, summer. The time came slowly, but here it is—school is in full swing.

Danger Lies Ahead for JFK

It all began in January 1961. A new president had taken office and was outlining his many "New Frontier" ideas to Congress. There were certain bills that had to be passed, he told the body of lawmakers, or our nation's future could not be good. The "must" bills included Medicare, federal aid to education, civil rights legislation, a new farm bill, and expansion of presidential powers, among many others.

Now, with two sessions of Congress completed, President Kennedy has yet to see his prized bills enacted. Congressmen have exhibited a belief in the doctrine of sound, conservative fiscal policy and have voted down measure after measure demanded by the White House. They have realized many forms of pressure to vote their convictions must be exasperating to the president to see the lack of cooperation he is receiving from the senators and representatives. He has changed them with playing partial politics and places all the blame for the defeat of his legislation on the Republicans. But what is the reason these bills have not been passed? The Republican members of Congress cannot receive all of the blame—or credit, if you prefer. With a huge Democratic majority in both houses, the president's own party, if united, could easily pass any legislation proposed. It is the failure of President Kennedy to keep his own party in line that has resulted in his failure to cure the nation's domestic ills.

Serious trouble faces Kennedy and his programs if voters continue the usual practice of reducing the majority of the president's party at the Mid-term congressional elections. Realizing what is ahead, he has gone out on the campaign trail and is fighting to elect Democrats to the Washington positions. If he succeeds it will truly be a mandate of the people in favor of "the things from Bernabei Ullies; however, history and apparent public opinion would make a prediction for Republican gains in both the House and the Senate a safe one.

Big gains by the G. O. P. would be a clear indication that the liberal trend in American political thought has been halted and that a return to sound, conservative policies is in store. Such a reversal by American voters would even partially destroy the belief that Kennedy is unbeatable in the 1964 elections. The previously shunned party as his opponent would then seem much more attractive.

Faulkner at Oxford

Recently, while strolling raged on the Oxford campus at Oxford, and the urge to write, we thought of William Faulkner, who would have been his reaction?

The raw little genius is dead. We can never really know. That is his fault. We remark at a magazine reporter.

"If we Americans are to survive it will have to be because we choose and elect and dare to be first of all Americans," said Faulkner was a shy, quiet little man who drank a good bit of Bourbon whiskey and bought about his native South. His thoughts were books. Critics were stirred by the Faulkner's Yoknapatawpha County myth, and said it was a parable for the modern South and that his characters were a parallel with man in the modern world who so often confronted by conflicting memory. It may have gone forever and the disman prospects of a decommercialized future.

Yet, in creating his people, "Faulkner can play high and suit them with the old truths of the human heart love, honor, pity, pride, c compassion, sacrifice. Those who lack these: universal human qualities are doomed.—Dickens'fore, T. Lee Snopes died.

Members of this unscrupulous Snopes faction are villains in Faulkner's myth. They are part of a conspiracy that appear from nowhere, and "get rich quick" by defeating the decent member of the aristocracy. For them, the end justifies the means.

But, in the country boy turned lawyer, turned public official, was safe in his Jackson mansion the night the blood ran in the streets of Oxford. There are no heroes in this mob, nor members have no dignity. Faulkner recognized this.

Last summer, while a blazing heat smothered the land, Faulkner, the only Southern writer to win the Nobel Prize for literature, died. He was 64.

Those who went to the funeral said they tuck his body sadly through the most-choked streets of Jackson, the capital of Mississippi, past the mansion, past the courthouse with its Confederate monument, past the silent, sorrowing rows of Negroes and whites. They placed him deep in the earth of Oxford. Faulkner thought man would endure and prevail.

If America is to prevail, we must bind up our wounds and continue with the fight.
A New Party Needed
by Jan Parkham
The two major political parties in the United States are al­most identical. There are three different types—the liberals, conservatives and moderates. I believe that the time has come for a party which will have a different platform. This party could be the Whig party which is the oldest political party in the United States. It is the party of the Liberty Boys; of John Adams, Patrick Henry, Ben Franklin, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and the rest of the founding fathers.

This Whig Party could be the party for the conservatives and moderates which would fight against the centralization of government in Washington, D.C. This party could be a constitution which would protect our heritage and American way of life from all threats, either from within or without. This party could become the hope for Southerners who now do not have a true national party. It will also appeal to many Mid-West­erners, Westerners and New Englanders, not subject to any minority pressure group.

Opportunities Offered At Placement Office
"Service to the student. Service to the employer. Service to the institution." These are the objectives of a college placement office.

A placement service may be compared to a crossroads. The traffic of students going from a campus meets the traffic of employers who come to a campus seeking workers. Here, too, are the faculty and alumni who are seeking information and guidance. In addition to being a crossroads, a placement office is a gateway to the future for graduates.

On the VSC campus is such a placement office. Mrs. Joseph S. Maddox, secretary to President Thaxton, has recently been appointed official Director of Placement. Mrs. Maddox urges all students to become acquainted with this office and the service it renders. The knowledge of the service is especially important to juniors and seniors. These students in the senior college should fill out a form to be used in obtaining a position after graduation. This form, also a substitute for letters of recommendation, includes comments from three major professors. These forms remain on file to save much time and work should the student later change positions.

Various positions, ranging from teaching to civil service, may be secured through the placement office. According to Mrs. Maddox, interviewers for federal positions make frequent visits to the college campus.

The placement office presents invaluable service to the future graduate, as well as to the graduate. The service is available also to students who desire part-time on campus jobs.

Stargazing
The new sound of country music, especially oldtimers, is sweeping the music field today. Revival of the old country songs has become quite popular and has halted recording company slumps, as sales began to rise. Hits like "I Can't Stop Loving You," "You Don't Know Me," and "Ramblin' Rose" all constitute the order of the year 1962—country music (modern style). "I Can't Stop Loving You" by Ray Charles sold well over a million, and the album "Modern Sounds in Country & Western Music," from which the selec­tion is taken, broke the half-million mark. Now Nat "King" Cole has reached the golden re­cord mark for "Ramblin' Rose", and an album with the same title, just released, is taking off like wild-fire.

Tommy Roe, of "Sheila" and "Piddle de pat" fame, was born in Atlanta, Ga. He's the newest star from Georgia. Joining the ranks of other top recording stars across the nation, he still lives in Atlanta with his parents and younger brothers. Tommy graduated from high school in 1960 and has since worked as a test­technician for electronics equipment while squeezing in his musical activities on the weekends. Tommy's group has been together ever since he was in the ninth grade. The group plays for fraternity parties, clubs and theaters. Tommy's hobby is painting in tempera. His first big record, "Sheila" sold well over a million records, and his second record to be headed in the same direction and another golden record.

One of the most popular spots on campus lately, is the library. Every night it is full of industrious people (mostly, freshmen), working on reports, essays and gossip. But has anyone found the definition of "Americanism"?

Other studious people may be found at the home of Kate Culpepper, who, Gail Bazemore and Ellen Taylor, of course—did I say studios?

The Phi Kappa, Sig Ep, and Tekes are in great spirit this year. Every night one of these groups has a cheering party in front of Ashely Hall, while the most spirit—it is hard to determine.

The same applies for the sororities, too. Especially sorority wing every Thursday night.

Shippman Shifts to Coaching Staff

Marcus Shippman was recently named assistant basketball coach at Valdosta State College. Shipman is a senior majoring in secondary education and minoring in mathematics. He plans to graduate from VSC and become a coach.

Shippman graduated from Vienna High School in the top ten percent of his class. In his junior and senior years, he led his Vienna team to two straight class B basketball state championships. Marcus was selected as the outstanding player both years.

After graduating from Vienna, the new coach selected Young Harris Junior College over several other schools that offered him scholarships because of better scholarship benefits. Shipman is the only second person to ever receive a full athletic scholarship to the institution.

Shippman played on the Young Harris team that defeated the Georgia Tech freshman team in his sophomore year. The team continued to win and captured the Georgia Junior College championship.

Upon graduating from Young Harris, he entered VSC. Last year he played on the rebel team that went undefeated in conference play while compiling a 19-2 won-lost record. One of these losses was to nationally ranked Florida State University.

Coach Gary Colson stated that it was tough losing Shipman as a player, but that because of his basketball knowledge, love of the game, and willingness to work, Marcus would be more valuable to the team as a coach. Shippman succeeds Charlie Green who is now a coach at Valdosta High School.

Rebels Begin Hoop Practice

The 1962-63 Valdosta State College Rebel basketball team began practice with full intention of successfully defending the GAC championship title that they have won for the past two years.

Coach Gary Colson stated that the team has potential, but that most of the players are untested under varsity senior college, and that the players must work hard.

The Rebels will have several handicaps to overcome this year. Such players as Jim Nichols, Bob Anderson, Doug Wintern, and Walter Ball are gone from last year’s championship team.

The Rebels play three tournament games before Christmas. The

MCA Edges by Sig Eps, 1-0
NC Beats Phi Kaps 6-0

The Men’s Christian Alliance and North Campus both won their opening games at the VSC intramural football play got underway.

The MCA squeaked by Sigma Phi Epsilon 1-0, determined on the penetration basis. North Campus took a 6-0 victory over Pi Kappa Phi.

Seldom is a football game won on penetration, but such was the case in the great defensive battle waged by the Men’s Christian Alliance and the Sig Eps.

During the second half the MCA underdogs seemed to have the most potent offense. Coach Gary Bass’s MCA team under the direction of quarterback, Larry Thomas moved the ball well against the strong Sig Epsilon defense. The MCA gained only one rushing yard line before they were halted by the determined Sig Epsilon line.

The second half was quite a different story with favored Sig Eps controlling the football. Early in the second half MCA’s Thomas suffered a facial injury and left the game. After that Sig Epps was in command, Sig Epps drove to the MCA five yard line late in the game, but were unable to score. Neither team was able to score before the final buzzer sounded so a penetration play-off was necessary. MCA showed a burst of spirit and claimed the victory.

Bill Wosenzitz charged into the Sig Epp backfield and brought down Johnny McIntyre to end the game. In the only other game of the first week of intramural play, North Campus edged Pi Kappa by a 6-0 score. Neither team could muster a scoring threat during the first three quarters.

In the fourth quarter Jim Whiteside hit Ronnie Merritt on a flare pass for the only score. The try for the extra point failed.

On the last play of the game Pi Kaps moved the ball to North Campus’s 20 yard line.

The game between TKE and Town was postponed because of rain and will be played at a later date.

"VSC is such a friendly spot," Lila explained. "In a home college, I would be a number. Here, I'm a person.

Lila is an East chemical engineer from Athens, expresses a deep interest in American politics, and reads the newspapers avidly.

She is sponsored this year by the Cairo, Bainbridge, and Quitman Rotary Clubs, and is majoring in secretarial science.

Alicia Maria Arceo Cabrera, a sparkling dark-eyed señorita from Merida Yucatan, Mexico, is sponsored by the Valdosta Rotarians.

Alicia says that although the customs are very different here, the people are friendly and nice without exception.

She has two brothers and three sisters, one of whom also attended VSC, and her interest center around a career in teaching.

The girls agree that the academic load is light here than at schools in their own countries where they have six or seven hours of classroom work each day and are not allowed any choice of subject matter.

The Rebels have two returning starters from last year's squad, Alfonso Perry, who was one of the team's top scorers last season, and Angelle Deviro, who was a team captain. The three new starters are also returning.
