Many Films Made Now; Reviews Provide Guides
Because of the large quantity of new books of all kinds throughout the country, the average college student seldom knows what outstanding books there are while seeing.

To help the discerning student come to a decision on what films he, or she, should see, this issue contains reviews of some recent films which should be considered for viewing by college students:

An American Dream — it's a pleasure.

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? — after seeing this, You may be.

The Fortune Cookie — a deliciously disconcerting film, something to chew on. The film is based on the best-seller, has made history.

Miami — Mary Poppins goes native and exchanges her umbrella for water wings!

The Singing Nun — a religious hootenanny, or nunnery, which every you prefer.

Dictionary Loses Status; Students Voice Protests

Many VSC students are going around with sad expressions and an empty space in their book shelf. Disapproving English professors have discontinued use of Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary.

Students should pick up their placement forms now, according to Dr. Martin, president of VSC. Requested for this year are representatives of the State Board of Regents, who in turn will ask the state allocates money to the library would, according to Dr. Martin, be able to accommodate a greater number of students. According to the library's computer, the required space would be 55,000 square feet.

Seniors Need Forms; Interviews Held Over

"Seniors should pick up their placement forms now," Mrs. S. M. Maddox, placement director of Valdosta State, said. Maddox explained that the office is still receiving applications for the field of English language and literature. She also said that the office is hoping to have the completed forms on file by the end of the year.

Interviews Held Over

"Still holding off on interviews," Neulunker observed. "We're planning to hold them in the spring, after the seniors have had a chance to look over their options and make up their minds about what they want to do.

Professors Speak Sagement; Words Prove Inspiration

Not only do words of wisdom come "out of the mouths of babes", but also out of the mouths of college professors. In almost any institution of higher learning, there are professors who have been very successful in inspiring words to their students.

The primary example is, of course, that most poetic of all expressions—"er, uh," many. A student has spent hours in class dreaming over these mysterious syllables, as they rhythmically interspersed throughout a lecture.

"This isn't really a test, but get out and take your notes," Dr. Martin observed. "What struggling student hasn't heard from the lips of professors. In almost any institution of higher learning, there are professors who have been very successful in inspiring words to their students.

"You're old when your parents are married," one professor commented.

"It just can't be," Neulunker observed.
The study of ancient history is not always an experience some students look forward to. However, if one's professor manages to have lived and taught where the events took place, the prospects for a more enlivened study become considerably brighter.

Such is the case of Dr. Paul Leonard, associate professor of history here at VSC, who studied and taught in the Middle East for eleven years from 1950 to 1961. After completing his Bachelor and Master's degree work at the University of Florida in 1950, Dr. Leonard traveled to Cairo, Egypt for three years study at Cairo University's School of Oriental Studies. Then during the following three years, he taught at the University.

In 1955 Dr. Leonard and his Lebanese wife moved to Beirut, Lebanon, where he served as associate professor of history at American University for six years.

Dr. Leonard's stay in the Middle East afforded him not only to study and to teach, but also to view political change, to observe social and cultural patterns, and to explore areas of historical and archeological importance. In 1952 while Leonard was in Cairo, the Egyptian army seized governmental control from King Faruk I. Two years later he was in the country when Gamal Abdel Nasser ousted the military leader.

Having seen life here in the United States and in the Middle East, Dr. Leonard made this comment about his Eastern students: "They are very polite, sensitive, linguistically inclined, and politically minded. He added that though Middle Eastern students were extremely interested in American history, they had difficulty in understanding our political institutions, racial and religious tolerance and the desire for an education were also mentioned by Dr. Leonard as characteristics of the Middle Eastern student.

In 1962 Dr. Leonard returned to the United States to work on his Ph.D. and to teach at Florida State University.
S. Walter Martin Becomes Fifth VSC President

Dr. and Mrs. Martin in president's home.

November 15, 1966, at 11:00 a.m., Dr. S. Walter Martin will be inaugurated as President of Valdosta State College. V.S.C. has as its new President a man who has had over thirty years of experience in the areas of college education and administration. Dr. Martin, who taught English History and American History at the University of Georgia, admits that he misses teaching. "I hope to be able to work in some teaching when my schedule as President settles down some," added Dr. Martin.

A native of Tifton, Ga., Dr. Martin received his A.B. from Furman University, his M.A. from the University of Georgia, and his Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Martin also holds honorary degrees from the University of North Carolina, Furman, and Florida Southern College.

Dr. Martin's teaching field is history and, in connection with that subject, he has written two books, as well as many articles for historical journals. His two books are: Florida During the Territorial Days and Florida's Flagler. "I enjoy historical research, and I hope to get back to writing and publishing articles when I retire," commented Dr. Martin.

In 1943 Dr. Martin was appointed Acting Head of the History Department at the University of Georgia. This was his first job in the area of administration. From 1945-1947 he was Assistant Dean of Faculties at the University, and in 1949, he was made Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Georgia. Eight years later, he became President of Emory University for four years, and from 1962-1966 he served as Vice-Chancellor of the University System of Georgia.

"I'm glad to be back in the University system," said Dr. Martin. He is highly enthusiastic about the future of Valdosta State College. "We have a fine student body and we are going to have a better one," added Dr. Martin.

Although the duties of the President of VSC keeps him very busy, Dr. Martin finds the time for "extra-curricular" activities. "I like to read—I love biographies, which is one way of learning history," said Dr. Martin. While he likes current television programs only "to a certain extent," Dr. Martin enjoys football, baseball, and basketball games on television. "I'm a great sports fan," he added.

Dr. Martin is also a great family man. Dr. and Mrs. Martin have a married daughter, Ellen, who is currently teaching English at Cross Keys High School, Atlanta, and a son, Phil, who is a student at South Georgia Junior College. Their family is a close one. "We all enjoy walking," said Dr. Martin. "When we arrived in Atlanta, my wife and I and Ellen and Phil often walked around town." He and his wife still take walks when they have the time.

Both Dr. Martin and his wife are active workers in church and civic groups. A member of the First Methodist Church of Valdosta, Dr. Martin has taught Sunday School classes and held various offices, both on a local and state level, in the Methodist Church. Dr. Martin has been engaged in civic organizations for 23 years, and at present is a Rotarian.

VSC has received as its president a highly-qualified leader, who is, as he says, "sympathetic to the students," and who is a president, indeed, to be proud of.

Past Emory President Becomes Valdosta State President

By BUNNY BRIDGES

Nine years ago on Tuesday, November 15, 1957, at 11:00 a.m., Dr. Walter S. Walter Martin was inaugurated as President of Emory University, and on Tuesday, November 15, 1966, at 11:00 a.m., Dr. S. Walter Martin will be inaugurated as President of Valdosta State College.

VSC has received as its president a highly-qualified leader, who is, as he says, "sympathetic to the students," and who is a president, indeed, to be proud of.
Fifty-three years ago, three college freshmen and fifteen high school students, known as subfreshmen, walked up a wooden plank into an unfinished building. Flanked by a field of corn on one side and a field of oats on the other, this building, later known as Converse Hall, housed the first classes of what was in January, 1913, the North Georgia State Normal College. And what is now, minus cats and corn, Valdosta State College.

Like Holmes Powell was first president of this institution, which seemed to be founded on sheer faith. Financial problems plagued the college often in the first part of its existence. Then, as now, housing for students proved a problem. With a dormitory capacity of sixty, the college felt the first squeeze as 95 enrolled for the second term and 74 for the summer session. By renting houses for use by students, the college temporarily eased the matter then.

In 1917 West Hall was completed, and all classes were held there. Then the first building was remodeled into living quarters, and later became Converse Hall. In 1921 a second dormitory, now Ashley Hall, housed dining facilities for the students.

The institution was made a four-year college granting the bachelor's degree in 1922, and in the same year, its name was changed to Georgia State Woman College. Nine years later, in 1931, the college became a fully accredited liberal arts and teachers college.

GSWC's second president was Dr. Jere M. Pound, who came into the position in 1933. Because of illness, however, Dr. Pound functioned in office less than a year and was succeeded in 1934 by Dr. Franke Robertson Read.

During Dr. Read's term as president, a third dormitory, later named in his honor, was erected, and in 1940, the Richard Holmes Powell Library was completed and dedicated on April 4 of the following year in a ceremony at which Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt was the principal speaker.

Dr. J. Ralph Thaxton became president of GSWC in 1948. Two years later, in January of 1950, the college became Valdosta State College. During World War II, the college had allowed a few local men students to enroll. The majority group on campus promptly called them the "Measley Thirteen."

The facilities at North Campus became a part of VSC in 1953. The following year the gym opened and from 1955-1956, the new dining hall and student center were opened for students' use.

In 1917, when West Hall was completed, President Powell began requesting money for additional classrooms. In 1960 President Thaxton saw that need fulfilled with the beginning of construction of five new buildings on the VSC campus.

From a farm with one building the college has grown to encompass two campuses and 25 buildings. Dr. S. Walter Martin, who will be the fifth president of the college, points out that this is just the beginning of a new growth of Valdosta State College.
Seminar To Summarize Progress In Instruction

"Improvement of Undergraduate Instruction in the Sciences" is the theme on which a science seminar will be based Tuesday afternoon, November 15. The seminar will be held in Room 3 of Nevins Hall at 3:00.

Panel members for the seminar will be the chairmen of the four state committees for the Improvement of Undergraduate Instruction in the Sciences. These committees, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, are the Commission on Undergraduate Education in Biology, the Advisory Council on College Physics, the Commission on College Chemistry, the Commission on College Physics, and the Committee on the Undergraduate Program in Mathematics.

Those serving as panel members will be Dr. Joseph H. Hadley, physics department head at Georgia State College in Atlanta; Dr. H. W. Wagoner, head of the department of chemistry at the University of Georgia in Athens; and Dr. Billy Joe Ball, math department head at the University of Georgia.

The other members of the panel are Dr. Vernon H. Hard, professor of zoology and the director of the school of sciences at the Georgia Institute of Technology in Atlanta; and Dr. Hope Ritter, of the zoology department at the University of Georgia.

Dr. Clyde Connell, head of the biology department at Valdosta State, said that one of the main objectives of the seminar is to get the members of these four science committees together for mutual discussion of top- ices which, until this time, have been discussed separately by the individual groups.

Dr. Connell explained that this seminar will provide an opportunity for the chairman to summarize for the group the recommendations for improvement of instruction which have been made at regional meetings.

An overall objective, according to Dr. Connell, is to find out what progress has been made in improving science teaching throughout the University system, and to discuss future progress in this area.

WGTV Offers Show Variety

WGTV, educational television, offers a variety of programs this month from discussions on communism to Georgia football.

Some of the special programs are as follows:

Nov. 11 at 9 o'clock—Sibelius Festival, Dr. Ralph Watkins, host.
Nov. 13 at 6:30 p.m. — Cyril Ritchard in Songs and Sketches, from The King and I.
Nov. 19 at 8 o'clock—Archie and Mehitabel.
Nov. 20 at 6:30 p.m. — Violinist Yehudi Menuhin presents Bach, Beethoven, and Bartok.
Nov. 25 at 9 o'clock—The War and Peace.

Georgia Television is broadcast over Channel 8 from Way- cross.

The Sock and Buskin Club is inviting all campus organizations—clubs, fraternities, sororities—to participate in the November 29, Fall Quarter Speech Forum. The forum will feature competition in persuasive speaking.

Any organization which wishes to sponsor a speaker in the competition may do the following:

1. Prepare a 5 minute persuasive speech on a current subject.
2. Have a minimum of three references.
3. Give the speaker's name and the name of the sponsoring organization to Terry Carter, President of the Sock and Buskin Club; Colonel Wesley Ren Christie, Faculty Advisor; or Gerald Boyd, Chairman of the Speech Forum Committee. Include the subject of the speech in the application.

The deadline for application is November 21.

Have the speaker present in room 220 of Pound Hall at 3:15 p.m., or soon thereafter, on November 28, for a preliminary run off to choose six speakers for the Speech Forum. The forum will feature six speakers to participate in the November 29, Fall Quarter Speech Forum. The forum will feature competition in persuasive speaking.

Thirty-six girls will vie for a place on the TKE calendar.

The first place winner will become Miss January, and eleven other girls will be selected to be on the calendar. The contestants will appear in evening gowns and sportswear. They will be judged on beauty, poise, neatness, and photogenic qualities.

Independent contestants are: Ginny Taylor, Waycross; Cathy Westbrook, Sanford, Fla.; Kay Cannington and Carolyn Ragan, both of Donaldsonville; Ginny Strickland, Adel; and Pat Carter, Valdosta.

Contestants from Kappa Delta include: Angie Thompson, Blake- ly; Cindy Black, and Mary Sue Zipperer, both of Valdosta; Charlene D. Dye, Orlando, Fla.; and June McElmoyle, Mi ami, Fla.

Representing Alpha Delta Phi are: Donna Blanton, Valdosta; Gail Castleberry, Adel; Patsy Rhodes, Cordele; Alice Scott, Valdosta; and Diane May, Lees- burg.

Alpha Zeta Delta contestants are: Tony Bell, Covington; Gwen Hart, Berlin; Nancy Doby and Vivian Davidson, both of Atlanta; and Sally McDonald, Tallahassee, Fla.

Contestants from Phi Mu are: Sandra Caine, Adel; Joy White, Blakely; Ann Askew, Newman; Lyn Kelly, Atlanta; and Susan Fulford, Shellman.

Governor Carl Sanders said that this would be an excellent opportunity for them to meet the Governor.

SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY EVENING AT 7:30 is an illustrated art lecture by Lamar Dodd, Regents Professor of Art at the University of Georgia. The program will be presented in Pound auditorium.

The inauguration ceremony will be held at 11:00 Tuesday morning at the Mathis city auditorium. Fletcher M. Green, Kenan Professor of History at the University of North Carolina, will be the inaugural speaker. Following the inauguration, there will be a luncheon honoring the out-of-town guest at 12:30 in the college cafeteria.

Martin said that classes will be dismissed from 1:00 on Monday until 3:00 Tuesday. "This is because we want the students here at VSC to participate in all of the dedication and inaugural festivities."

"This is the biggest event of the year. A big celebration such as this focuses attention on the institution. We want to be distinctive and widely known, and this is the best thing in the world to spread the Image of the university," Dr. Martin went on to say.

A number of visitors will be in Valdosta for the occasion. Martin said that about 150 colleges and universities in the Southeast will have representatives at the inauguration. These guests will march in the academic procession in their academic regalia for the inauguration ceremony.

There will also be between 300 and 400 out-of-town guests on campus for the occasion. President Martin pointed out that these guests will be prominent people of the state, region, country, System of Georgia, mayors, and distinguished educators.

At 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, there will be a science lecture held in Lecture Room 3 of Nevins Hall. The seminar will be centered around the theme of Improvement of Undergraduate Science Instruction, and is open to all students.

Panel members for the seminar will be the chairman of the University System of Georgia Committee on Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics, and Physics during the inauguration. Martin's doctoral dissertation, "Territorial Period of Florida," will be on exhibit in the Founders Library. It covers the history of Florida from the period of time from 1821 until 1845, before Florida became a state, he said. The latter book is based on his dissertation, "Florida's Flagler is a book by the man who built up the east coast of Florida."

Artist Dodd To Present Illustrated Art Lecture

One of the highlights of the November 14-15 ceremonies will be an illustrated art lecture by Lamar Dodd, Regents Professor of Art, at Pound Auditorium Monday evening at 7:30.

Dodd is head of the department of art and chairman of the division of fine arts at the University of Georgia. He is a life time friend of Dr. S. Walter Martin, president of Valdosta State College.

Dodd's works have won a number of awards and purchase prizes throughout the country. These are from the Chicago Art Institute, National Academy of Design, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, the National Institute of Arts and Letters, and a number of annual exhibitions.

He is represented in several permanent collections, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Museum of Modern Art, the Museum of the City of New York, and numerous other public and private collections.

Schlade GIVES SGA Concert

Percy Schlade, rock 'n' roll singer who made his name in the entertainment world with his recording, "Love Me Like a Woman," will appear here on November 14, Dr. Green said.

Schlade's next hit is "Warm and Tender Love" and "It's for You Baby.

There will be shows at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. in the gym. Admission prices for students only. The second show will be open to the general public.

Student tickets are $1.00 and adults $2.00. Valdosta State students using presentation of their ID cards may buy tickets for $1.00. Then they will be charged regular admission.

News Briefs

The Wesley Foundation will have a Seminar supper on November 14, at 6:30 p.m. at the Foundation. Tickets are $1.00 each and may be purchased at the Foundation. Tickets should be purchased by November 11.

According to O. Dean, Wesley Foundation director, Barbecue chicken will be served. Everyone is invited to attend.

Nobody Gains Majority
In Governor's Election

Is this Maddox Country? It's a moot question. For the time being, it's still Carl's Country. With the governors' elections over for the time being, President Lyndon Johnson has an inferiority complex, and Georgia has a law suit.

The election returns furnished an endless source of amusement for national networks, notably but in Georgia most people failed to see the humor of the situation. The write-in vote made it impossible for either Maddox or Callaway to win a winning majority. Governor Callaway, who heads the South Carolina Republican party, has filed suit to prevent the decision from resting with the House of Representatives. So it is that the candidates who have pledged to represent the federal government of the United States must turn to that same power for a decision on their race. And there-in lies a beautiful bit of irony.

Lt. Gov. George T. Smith, who has emerged from this tumult remarkably uninjured, may have a certain subtle significance in this election. Well, this is the election that was and was and was and was and was and was and was and was and was and was and was and was and was and was

EX LIBRIS

Faust and Some Modern Day Novelists

By GERALD JOINER

In view of what Marlowe, Goethe, and Shakespeare have written about Faust, it is not surprising that the literary figures in the past have had such a bad conscience over the Faust legend, if we are to accept the word of the old version, but that is what History has to say about Goethe's Faust, Faust to Walk. His hero, a sopho more at Sheldon College is a Faustian figure, and his English translation of Faust, Marlowe, and Shakespeare are all of the same character. The student, named Chum Breed, is a modern type of Faust. And Faust is a man which Fift signs and then seals with his blood. In Marlowe's play Faust, having mastered divinity, medicine, and law, is bored and turns to magic, sum m o i n g Mephistopheles and bargaining with his soul. John Fift is no great scholar, but up to this point he has been a better student than most and is working his way through the world. At the beginning of the time, he begins not to go to a lecture because it is "too far to walk." Now, in his new state of mind, on a beauti ful day in May, he asks himself, "How far would he be far too far to walk on this particular day?"

Problems Grow

And we think we've got problems nowadays . . .

"Our earth is degenerate in these latter days; there are signs that the world is quickly coming to an end; bribery and corruption are common; children no longer obey their parents; every man is trying to be a writer, and the end is evidently approaching."

Students Should Dress Appropriately
Exercise Courtesy Toward All Guests

Dignitaries from over 150 colleges and universities plus state officials will be present at the building dedication and inaugural services at VSC next week. This in itself constitutes a major occasion on campus.

Students should be aware of the austerity of the events and dress accordingly. Even without visiting dignitaries and guests, speakers, a presidential inauguration is an event to be respected. A coat and tie for men and appropriate dress for women cannot be too much to ask for such an event.

The appearance of a student directly influences what people say about him and his college. Valdosta State College would look poor indeed if, after dedicating five beautiful new buildings, reports were voiced on the undignified appearance of the students and the undignified character of the campus.

To entertain visitors on an event such as the inauguration is a responsibility for the students of the college as well as for the faculty and its administration. This responsibility includes courtesy to the guest, tidiness of the campus, and a love of neat personal appearance of students.

Valdosta State College stands to gain a lot of prestige, locally and statewide, in the events coming up next week. This prestige can influence the growth of the college in future years if a favorable impression is made. However, if an unfavorable impression is made VSC will decline in growth and prestige. It is up to the students to maintain a favorable image of the college in the on-going events.

Students should have enough respect for college to want to form and maintain a good image. The way they can do this next week is to have a neat appearance and dress properly.

Students Voice Their Approval
For Expansion

Greek Week for 1966 is now past, and many gay memories have been made a part of our collegiate history. Greek Week is a happy time of weeks when the activities of most on campus such as sororities and fraternities would increase competition and perhaps marginalize the growth of the college.

What are some opinions of VSC students on the additions of sororities and fraternities on campus?

Henry Wilkes, sophomore: With increased enrollment a larger student body can support more organizations. There are many number of sororities and fraternities in case they want to expand.

Glenn Smith, junior: I think the Greek organizations should be limited in number. Their aim is to have a good time, not to perform any constructive activities. The Greek organizations should make student activities include the entire student participation.

Mike Conlan, sophomore: I think Valdosta State should have more fraternities and sororities because we have now, two can join forces against the other. Also, both the gigantic size of the schools of fraternities in case they want to expand.

Students Should Attend Inaugural Ceremonies

"Yeah, Monday is the day the new buildings on campus will be dedicated. No classes. Great. How about Tuesday? Monday is the day the classes then either. Great. Where can we go?"

It is important to end this speculation at this point and to pursue it no further. Any student who misses the programs planned for the next week, with respect to dedication and inauguration ceremonies, will be missing a rare opportunity.

School officials speculate that more than 5,000 people will be present for these ceremonies including various college presidents and Governor Carl E. Sanders. Even before the official ceremonies begin on campus, media notaries as well as interested townpeople are flocking to the campus. This is the most attention ever focused on Valdosta State College at any time in its entire history. The inauguration of a president, alone, is an event which will happen on this campus once in a student's lifetime.

Even another advantage will be offered in lectures during the week — lectures of the caliber of the highest type. Lecture that have never before come to VSC. And that is why students are for nothing if there is not adequate response. A participation in these activities should stimulate student's interests and pride in VSC.

Students must present an image of VSC, but this image must be true and a Sunday best pretense for guests but every day image — an image that will make a carry some impression.

This is big responsibility — image-making that is. It requires immaculate appearance, the appropriate manner of greeting guests, and the proper way to accomplish more students.

Greg Cook, sophomore: I think there should be more fraternity and sorority life on VSC. I think this would eliminate the bitter competition that exists now between the ones we have and the ones everyone else has. Addition to the Greek organizations would include more people and more social activities. This would be fewer left out. These things may feel especially bad to be in this minority.
One of the most frequently heard questions at fall quarter registration was: “Good grief, where do they all come from?” A tabulation made by the Registrar’s Office concerning the geographical distribution of students currently enrolled at Valdosta State College helps solve this mystery. “They” come from all over and from ever-increasing distances.

Contrary to popular belief, VSC’s drawing power is no longer confined to deep South Georgians—or the “Pinywoods” parts of the state. In fact, the school is fast becoming a national college—both in student body and in faculty.

Of the 1,891 students enrolled this quarter, 232 come from states other than Georgia; among these foreign students are from Japan, Norway, and Sweden. Outside of Georgia, the state of Florida has the most students coming to VSC, with 182 Floridians now enrolled. Twenty-five other states are also represented on the campus of VSC, with Indiana (12); New Jersey (8); Ohio (12); New York (7); and Connecticut (6) having the largest numbers enrolled.

Of the 159 counties in Georgia, 87 have students at Valdosta State College. Lowndes County, the county where the school is located, has the largest number of students enrolled, with 480. Dougherty County is next with 311, followed by Brooks 90; Thomas 75; Ware 53; and Berrien 50. Also enrolled at VSC are sixty students from Metropolitan Atlanta, including Decatur and DeKalb Counties.

As the college continues to grow in popularity and facilities, its attraction for out-of-staters increases. Plans are now being made to send recruiting teams to faculty members and administrators to those institutions to present junior colleges in South Georgia and North Florida.

Essay Contest Nears Deadline

Students are reminded that March 6, 1967, will be the 131st anniversary of the Alamo Massacre. Students should as soon as possible begin research for the Alamo Massacre Essay Contest. This year’s topic will be: “The Real Reason Davy Crockett Wore a Coon-Skin Cap All the Time.”

Book’s Presence Causes Controversy On Campus

One of the most controversial books ever written is available at the VSC Bookstore now has an ample supply of the “never-to-be-forgotten” Blue Book.

Fashion-conscious students at Valdosta State College are faced with a clothes problem, due to the contrary nature of November’s weather. The sudden dip in temperature, which occurred at the time, caused the instructor to bring out their warm winter clothes with the hope that the cold air would remain. These hopes have evaporated with the return to warmer weather that has followed.

Ingenious students, however, can solve this clothing problem by recognizing the many outfits, suitable to this “in-between” weather, which can be created from combinations of their summer, autumn, and winter wardrobes.

The “layered look” can be achieved by putting together a cotton skirt and sleeveless shell or a last resort.

Fashion-conscious students, however, can solve this clothing problem by recognizing the many outfits, suitable to this “in-between” weather, which can be created from combinations of their summer, autumn, and winter wardrobes.

Greek Keep Active Pace

Greek organizations continue their steady pace of activities for the Fall Quarter.

The Order of Diana, a national Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity, will hold its initiation of the fall quarter on Saturday for TKE brothers and members.
